Mass Communications Research Resources Christopher H. Sterling, James K. Bracken, Susan B. Hill, 2016-05-06 This reference book is designed as a road map for researchers who need to find specific information about American mass communication as expeditiously as possible Taking a topical approach it integrates publications and organizations into subject focused chapters for easy user reference The editors define mass communication to include print journalism and electronic media and the processes by which they communicate messages to their audiences Included are newspaper magazine radio television cable and newer electronic media industries Within that definition this volume offers an indexed inventory of more than 1 400 resources on most aspects of American mass communication history technology economics content audience research policy and regulation The material featured represents the carefully considered judgment of three experts two of them librarians plus four contributors from different industry venues The primary focus is on the domestic American print and electronic media industries Although there is no claim to a complete census of all materials on print journalism and electronic media what is available is now too vast for any single guide the most important and useful items are here The emphasis is on material published since 1980 though useful older resources are included as well Each chapter is designed to stand alone providing the most important and useful resources of a primary nature organizations and documents as well as secondary books and reports In addition online resources and internet citations are included where possible

Television Series and Specials Scripts, 1946-1992 ,2009-10-21 In the early days of television many of its actors writers producers and directors came from radio This crossover endowed the American Radio Archives with a treasure trove of television documents The collected scripts span more than 40 years of American television history from live broadcasts of the 1940s to the late 1980s They also cover the entire spectrum of television entertainment programming including comedies soap operas dramas westerns and crime series The archives cover nearly 1 200 programs represented by more than 6 000 individual scripts Includes an index of personal names program and episode titles and production companies as well as a glossary of industry terms

Smokin' Rockets Patrick Lucanio, Gary Coville, 2002-06-25 Science and technology had a significant influence on American culture and thought in the years immediately following World War II The new wonders of science and the threat of the Soviet Union as a powerful new enemy made science fiction a popular genre in radio television and film Mutant creatures spawned by radioactive energy and intergalactic dictators unleashing horrific weapons upon Earth were characteristic of science fiction at the time and served as warnings to the very real dangers posed by the atomic age This work examines science and science fiction in American culture beginning in the year World War II ended and going to 1962 the year of John Glenn's orbital flight and the Cuban Missile Crisis The radio work of Arch Oboler and the significance of his Rocket from Manhattan which aired only one month after the dropping of the first atomic bomb and asked serious questions about the use of atomic energy are examined Other topics are the conflict between the free world and the

Communist world in the context of science fiction plot lines the dangers of science as shown in films like Godzilla Them The Day the Earth Stood Still and radio and television programs the flying saucer phenomenon and the treatment of such stories in the media with special attention given to the 1956 documentary UFO the changing and more positive depictions of scientists television programs like Flash Gordon and Space Patrol the shift in the balance of world power due to the successful launching of Sputnik I by the Russians in 1957 the end of the world theme in science fiction and the American journey into space

Television Program Master Index Charles V. Dintrone, 2003 This work makes the television researchers job easier by providing a single index to 334 books that include information on nearly 1 000 shows Most of the books deal exclusively with television though some autobiographies biographies Congressional hearings and works on communication and the media are also indexed
