Paradisal Love John D. Baildam, 1999-10-01 This is the first comprehensive study of Herder s preoccupation with the Song of Songs Baildam considers the importance of this poetry in his thinking and examines his commentaries and translations of 1776 and 1778 Despite Herder s claims to the contrary his own cultural position is revealed in his translations and in his unique interpretation of the work as the voice of pure paradisal love Starting with Herder s interest in the Song of Songs between 1765 and 1778 this book sets his reflections in the wider context of his relativistic views on the nature of poetry contemporary German culture and the importance of primitive poetry in general and the poetry of the Bible in particular Then Baildam looks at current literary critical theories with implications for Herder s translations of these Lieder der Liebe and discusses Herder s theories of language and translation in comparison with German translation theories Herder s reading of the Song as the most primitive natural and sublime example of Hebrew poetry is placed in the context of earlier and contemporary interpretations his opinion of which is examined In the last part of the book there is an appraisal first of Herder's commentaries themselves analysing how the details reflect his overall concept of the work and then of his translations comparing them with each other with the Lutheran text to which Herder ultimately directed his readership and with the Hebrew text A concluding chapter reviews the reception of Herder's work and three appendices offer a parallel presentation of Herder's translations of 1776 and 1778 Luther's translation of 1545 and Goethe's translation of 1775

Transnationalism in American Regional Literature Veronica Kirk-Clausen, 2007 Within Judaism? Interpretive Trajectories in Judaism, Christianity, and Islam from the First to the Twenty-First Century Anders Runesson, Karin Hedner Zetterholm, 2023-11-27 This book charts the shifting boundaries of Judaism from antiquity to the modern period in order to bring clarity to what scholars mean when they claim that ancient texts or groups are within Judaism as well as exploring how rabbinic Jews Christians and Muslims have negotiated and renegotiated what Judaism is and is not in order to form their own identities Belief in Jesus as the Messiah was seen as part of first century Judaism but by the fourth or fifth century the boundaries had shifted and adherence to Jesus came to be seen as outside of Judaism Resituating New Testament texts within first or second century Judaism is an historical exercise that may broaden our view of what Judaism looked like in the early centuries CE but normatively these texts remain within Christianity because of their reception history The historical within Judaism perspective however has the potential to challenge and reshape the theology of contemporary Christianity while at the same time the long held consensus that belief in Jesus cannot belong within Judaism is again challenged by the modern Messianic Jewish movement International Journal of Translation, 2006 The Journal of Jewish Studies, 1997

Essays and Studies, 1950 Target, 1993 The Translator, 2008 Bibliography of Translation Studies Lynne Bowker, Dorothy Kenny, Jennifer Pearson, 1999 A volume of selected annotated references arranged under specific headings to provide a non partisan guide to teachers involved in designing courses in translation and or interpreting A Mirror on the Rhine? Paul Rowe, 2000 The reception and evaluation of German culture in France as found in the Nouvelle revue germanique Strasbourg 1829 1837 and its predecessors the Bibliothèque allemande 1826 and the Revue germanique 1827 are the main themes of this study. It analyses the review's coverage of German culture and society and shows how this was conditioned by the political, religious and intellectual concerns of the contributors in particular and of French culture in general. This book demonstrates that the Nouvelle revue germanique questioned received ideas about Germany and was one of the most important and accurate contributors to French knowledge of German culture at the height of its influence in France. Pirandello Studies, 2000. Actas Del Coloquio Internacional Multilingue "El Canadá Y Las Américas : Perspectivas Multidisciplinarias Sobre la Transculturalidad" Afef Benessaïeh, 2008. Legilinguistic Translatology Aleksandra Matulewska, 2013. The author proposes a theory of legal translation the aim of which is to formulate postulates and dimensions used to characterize legal texts and their component parts for the purpose of establishing relevant meanings and choosing proper translative equivalents for a selected legal communicative community of translation recipients.

Translation and Westernisation in Turkey from the 1840s to the 1980s Özlem Berk, 2004. Dialogic Education and the Problematics of Translation in Homer and Greek Tragedy Janet Elaine Parker, 2001. This book opens up a new way of reading classical literary texts appropriate both to the needs and competencies of today's university students and also it is argued to the classic texts themselves. The texts' rich linguistic fabric is constructed out of the play of issues and character of action and of evaluation a play that is quickly lost in translation. The solution offered is not the traditional one of ever more intensive language teaching. Rather the book argues for the provision of texts glossed with key words to enable students to create engaged critical readings for themselves to read through rather than in translation.

Literature in Translation Carol Maier, Françoise Massardier-Kenney, 2010. In the last several decades literary works from around the world have made their way onto the reading lists of American university and college courses in an increasingly wide variety of disciplines. This is a cause for rejoicing. Through works in translation students in our mostly monolingual society are at last becoming acquainted with the multilingual and multicultural world in which they will live and work. Many instructors have expanded their reach to teach texts that originate from across the globe. Unfortunately literature in English translation is frequently taught as if it had been written in English and students are not made familiar with the cultural, linguistic and literary context in which that literature was produced. As a result they submit what they read to their own cultural expectations; they do not read in translation and do not reap the benefits of intercultural communication. Here a true challenge arises for an instructor. Books in translation seldom contain introductory information about the mediation that translation implies or the stakes involved in the transfer of cultural information. Instructors are often left to find their own material about the author or the culture of the source text. Lacking the appropriate pedagogical tools they struggle to provide information about either the original work or about translation itself and they might feel uneasy about teaching material for which they lack adequate preparation. Consequently they restrict themselves to well known works in translation or works from other countries originally written in English. Literature in Translation Teaching Issues and Reading Practices squarely addresses this pedagogical lack. The book's sixteen essays provide for instructors a context in which to teach works from a variety of languages and cultures in ways that highlight the effects of linguistic and cultural transfers
