Wanderlust A History Of Walking:

Wanderlust Rebecca Solnit, 2001-06-01 A passionate thought provoking exploration of walking as a political and cultural activity from the author of Orwell's Roses Drawing together many histories of anatomical evolution and city design of treadmills and labyrinths of walking clubs and sexual mores Rebecca Solnit creates a fascinating portrait of the range of possibilities presented by walking Arguing that the history of walking includes walking for pleasure as well as for political aesthetic and social meaning Solnit focuses on the walkers whose everyday and extreme acts have shaped our culture from philosophers to poets to mountaineers She profiles some of the most significant walkers in history and fiction from Wordsworth to Gary Snyder from Jane Austen's Elizabeth Bennet to Andre Breton's Nadja finding a profound relationship between walking and thinking and walking and culture Solnit argues for the necessity of preserving the time and space in which to walk in our ever more car dependent and accelerated world

Wanderlust Rebecca Solnit, 2022-07 A reissue of the profound and meandering modern classic about the historical political and philosophical paths traced by walkers

Wanderlust Rebecca Solnit, 2000-04-01 Draws together many histories of anatomical evolution city design of treadmills labyrinths of walking clubs sexual mores to create a portrait of the range of possibilities for this most basic act Argues that walking as history signifies walking for pleasure for political aesthetic social meaning Hones in on the walkers whose everyday extreme acts have shaped our culture from the peripatetic philosophers of ancient Greece to the poets of the Romantic Age from the perambulations of the Surrealists to the ascents of the mountaineers There is a profound relationship between walking thinking walking culture Argues for the necessity of preserving the time space to walk in an ever more auto dependent accelerated world

Wanderlust Rebecca Solnit, 2000 Discusses walking as a political social and aesthetic act exploring its history and how famous walkers such as Wordsworth Socrates and Jane Austen's characters used it and explains the necessity of walking instead of always driving and hurrying

Wanderlust , 1926 Everyday Objects Tara Hamling, Catherine Richardson, 2010 Material culture research has become an increasingly important aspect of the study of medieval and early modern societies yet its study often remains uncoordinated and confined to narrow subject specific boundaries As such scholars will welcome this volume which provides an overview of various methodological strands currently developing across a range of disciplines Taking a refreshingly broad approach the collection explores everyday objects as a way of questioning the relationship between material culture and historical themes In so doing it highlights the way in which the study of objects can provide unexpected access to the lived experience of individuals who may otherwise have left little impact in the written records

Wanderlust Rebecca Solnit, 2021-01-01 Un fascinante retrato de la infinita gama de posibilidades que se presentan a pie Analizando temas que van desde la evolución anatómica hasta el diseño de las ciudades pasando por las cintas de correr los clubes de senderismo y las costumbres sexuales Solnit sostiene que las diferentes variantes del desplazamiento pedestre incluido caminar por placer suponen una acción política estética y de gran significado social Para ello se centra en los caminantes más significativos de la historia y de la narrativa cuyos actos extremos y cotidianos han dado forma a nuestra cultura. Desde Wordsworth a Gary Snyder, de Jane Austen a Elizabeth Bennet y André Breton, existe una larga asociación histórica entre caminar y filosofar. La evidencia física de la evolución humana es la que la capacidad de moverse en posición vertical sobre dos patas es la que distingue a los humanos de las otras bestias y la que nos permite dominarlas. Para la autora hay una clara relación entre el caminar y el pensamiento. Caminar dice Solnit es el estado en el que la mente, el cuerpo y el mundo están alineados. Wanderlust reproduce en la sencillez y cadencias de su prosa los ritmos de un buen paseo. Local Places, Global Processes Peter Coates, David Moon, Paul Warde, 2016-02-29 We live in an age of unprecedented environmental change, global interconnected and universal. Yet though our lives are inextricably connected to global processes and increasingly mobile, we still live in particular places. Our perceptions of change and what kind of change might be for good or ill are shaped by the interaction of localised experience and the wider forces of transformation. Local Places, Global Processes examines how these relationships have been shaped in Britain over time in three ways. First through essays addressing influential ways of understanding and debating questions of the state of nature. These are complemented by case studies on conservation, landscape change and management, and how perceptions of environmental change have emerged or been discarded over time. Chapters also draw on a series of site-based workshops that brought together historians, landscape managers and artists to discuss and reflect on particular sites: Wicken Fen in Cambridgeshire, owned by the National Trust and the first British nature reserve; the Quantock Hills Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty in Somerset, England's first AONB, and a landscape enriched by Romantic association; and the landscape of Kielder Water and Forest, a land of superlatives in Northumberland, in north-eastern England, the largest planted forest and artificial lake in northern Europe. The multi-disciplinary approach draws together the exchanges, artworks and writing assembled at these workshops and afterwards. This opens up how being in a place and engaging with ideas attached to it shape perceptions of the environment. It provides resources with which landscape managers can think about their tasks and engage various publics in discussion about future environments in light of these histories of place. Rather than a history of these three places, this is history written from them. The Blue, the Gray, and the Green Brian Allen Drake, 2015 An unusual collection of Civil War essays as seen through the lens of noted environmental scholars, this book's provocative historical commentary explores how nature, disease, climate, flora and fauna etc. affected the war and how the war shaped Americans' perceptions, understanding and use of nature. Walking in the Wilderness Michaela Keck, 2006 This book investigates the adaptation and transformation of the European peripatetic tradition in nineteenth-century America, in particular Henry David Thoreau's literary walks and their visual counterparts in American landscape painting. Although Thoreau's perambulations in New World nature have been studied in scholarship, no study has offered a comparative analysis nor has the philosophic, contemplative aspect of his art of Walking been sufficiently studied. The present study puts his walking pattern into a transatlantic as well as interdisciplinary context and illuminates the uniquely American aesthetic philosophic considerations underlying the genre of the walk in American nineteenth century literature and painting

Natives, Newcomers, Exiles, Fugitives Jonah Raskin, 2003 Reviews and interviews of 32 authors of both fiction and non fiction who live or have lived in northern California A History of Solitude David Vincent, 2020-05-06 Solitude has always had an ambivalent status the capacity to enjoy being alone can make sociability bearable but those predisposed to solitude are often viewed with suspicion or pity Drawing on a wide array of literary and historical sources David Vincent explores how people have conducted themselves in the absence of company over the last three centuries He argues that the ambivalent nature of solitude became a prominent concern in the modern era For intellectuals in the romantic age solitude gave respite to citizens living in ever more complex modern societies But while the search for solitude was seen as a symptom of modern life it was also viewed as a dangerous pathology a perceived renunciation of the world which could lead to psychological disorder and anti social behaviour Vincent explores the successive attempts of religious authorities and political institutions to manage solitude taking readers from the monastery to the prisoner s cell and explains how western society s increasing secularism urbanization and prosperity led to the development of new solitary pastimes at the same time as it made traditional forms of solitary communion with God and with a pristine nature impossible At the dawn of the digital age solitude has taken on new meanings as physical isolation and intense sociability have become possible as never before With the advent of a so called loneliness epidemic a proper historical understanding of the natural human desire to disengage from the world is more important than ever The first full length account of its subject A History of Solitude will appeal to a wide general readership Experiential Walks for Urban Design Barbara E. A. Piga, Daniel Siret, Jean-Paul Thibaud, 2021-08-05 The edited volume explores the topic of experiential walks which is the practice of multi or mono sensory and in motion immersion into an urban or natural environment The act of walking is hence intended as a process of re discovering reflecting and learning through an embodied experience Specific attention is devoted to the investigation of the ambiance of places and its dynamic atmospheric perception that contribute to generating the social experience This topic is gaining increasing attention and has been studied in several forms in different disciplines to investigate the particular spatial social sensory and atmospheric character of places The book contains chapters by experts in the field and covers both the theory and the practice of innovative methods techniques and technologies It examines experiential walks in the perspective of an interdisciplinary approach to environmental and sensory urban design by organising the contributions according to three specific interrelated focuses namely the exploration and investigation of the multisensory dimension of public spaces the different ways to grasp and communicate the in motion experience through traditional and novel forms of representation and the application of the approach to urban participatory planning and higher education Shedding new light on the topic the book offers both a reference guide for those engaged in applied research and a toolkit for professionals and students Acts of Seeing Assimina Kaniari, Marina Wallace, 2009 Parallel to Kemp's interest in contemporary science one of his most consistent themes is the historical exploration of the possibilities of perceived and represented structures and patterns as organisational imperatives in nature and cognition Structures in the context of Kemp's writing not only relate to the privileged observation sites of modern science but also act as instruments for an art history of contextually examined yet philosophically approached continuities

Landscapes of Culture and Nature Rod Giblett, 2009-09-29 This book is a bold and exciting exploration of the relationship and interactions between humans the human landscape and the earth looking at a diverse range of case studies from the nineteenth century city to the Asian tsunami and Hurricane Katrina
