Situated Intervention Sociological Experiments In Health Care Inside Technology:

Situated Intervention Teun Zuiderent-Jerak, 2015-08-07 An exploration of sociological research that is neither detached nor engaged a new approach to sociological knowledge production with examples from health care In this book Teun Zuiderent Jerak considers how the direct involvement of social scientists in the practices they study can lead to the production of sociological knowledge Neither detached sociological scholarship nor engaged social science this new approach to sociological research brings together two activities often viewed as belonging to different realms intervening in practices and furthering scholarly understanding of them Just as the natural sciences benefited from broadening their scholarship from theorizing to experiment so too could the social sciences Additionally Zuiderent Jerak points out rather than proceeding from a pre set normative agenda scholarly intervention allows for the experimental production of normativity Scholars are far from detached but still may be surprised by the normative outcomes of the interactions within the experiment Zuiderent Jerak illustrates situated intervention research with a series of examples drawn from health care Among the topics addressed are patient compliance in hemophilia home care the organization of oncology care and the value of situated standardization the relationship between standardization and patient centeredness the development of patient centered pathways value driven and savings driven approaches to the construction of health care markets and multiple ontologies of safety in care for older adults Finally returning to the question of normativity in sociological research Zuiderent Jerak proposes an ethics of specificity according to which research adapts its sociological responses to the practices studied Sociology not only has more to offer to the practices it studies it also has more to learn from them Democratic

Experiments Brice Laurent, 2017-05-12 An examination of nanotechnology as a lens through which to study contemporary democracy in both theory and practice In Democratic Experiments Brice Laurent discusses the challenges that emerging technologies create for democracy today He focuses on nanotechnology and its attendant problems proposing nanotechnology as a lens through which to understand contemporary democracy in both theory and practice Arguing that democracy is at stake where nanotechnology is defined as a problem Laurent examines the sites where nanotechnology is discussed and debated by scientists policymakers and citizens It is at these sites where the joint production of nanotechnology and the democratic order can be observed Focusing on the United States France and Europe and various international organizations Laurent analyzes representations of nanotechnology in science museums collective discussions in participatory settings the making of categories such as nanomaterials or responsible innovation in standardization and regulatory arenas and initiatives undertaken by social movements He contrasts American debates in which the concern for public objectivity is central with the French state experiment the European goal of harmonization and the international concern with a global market In France public debate proceeded in response to public protest and encountered a radical critique of technological development the United States experimented with an innovative approach to technology assessment

The European regulatory approach results in lengthy debates over political integration the United States relies on the adversarial functioning of federal agencies Because nanotechnology is a domain where concerns over anticipation and participation are pervasive Laurent argues nanotechnology and science and technology studies more generally provides a relevant focus for a renewed analysis of democracy

Models of Innovation Benoit Godin, 2017-02-24 Benoit Godin is a Professor at the Institut national de la recherche scientifique Montreal Models abound in science technology and society STS studies and in science technology and innovation STI studies They are continually being invented with one author developing many versions of the same model over time At the same time models are regularly criticized Such is the case with the most influential model in STS STI the linear model of innovation In this book Benoit Godin examines the emergence and diffusion of the three most important conceptual models of innovation from the early twentieth century to the late 1980s stage models linear models and holistic models Godin first traces the history of the models of innovation constructed during this period considering why these particular models came into being and what use was made of them He then rethinks and debunks the historical narratives of models developed by theorists of innovation Godin documents a greater diversity of thinkers and schools than in the conventional account tracing a genealogy of models beginning with anthropologists industrialists and practitioners in the first half of the twentieth century to their later formalization in STS STI Godin suggests that a model is a conceptualization which could be narrative or a set of conceptualizations or a paradigmatic perspective often in pictorial form and reduced discursively to a simplified representation of reality Why are so many things called models Godin claims that model has a rhetorical function First a model is a symbol of scientificity Second a model travels easily among scholars and policy makers Calling a conceptualization or narrative or perspective a model facilitates its propagation

Listening in the Field Joeri Bruyninckx, 2018-05-11 The transformation of sound recording into a scientific technique in the study of birdsong as biologists turned wildlife sounds into scientific objects Scientific observation and representation tend to be seen as exclusively visual affairs But scientists have often drawn on sensory experiences other than the visual Since the end of the nineteenth century biologists have used a variety of techniques to register wildlife sounds In this book Joeri Bruyninckx describes the evolution of sound recording into a scientific technique for studying the songs and calls of wild birds and asks what it means to listen to animal voices as a scientist The practice of recording birdsong took shape at the intersection of popular entertainment and field ornithology turning recordings into objects of investigation and popular fascination Shaped by the technologies and interests of amateur naturalism and music teaching radio broadcasting and gramophone production hobby electronics and communication engineering birdsong recordings traveled back and forth between scientific and popular domains to appear on gramophone recordings radio broadcasts and movie soundtracks Bruyninckx follows four technologies the musical score the electric microphone the portable magnetic tape recorder and the sound spectrograph through a cultural history of field recording and scientific listening He chronicles a period when verbal descriptions musical notations and onomatopoeic syllables represented birdsong and shaped a community of listeners later electric recordings struggled with notions of fidelity realism objectivity and authenticity scientists early citizen scientists and the recording industry negotiated recording exchange and trained listeners complemented the visual authority of spectrographic laboratory analyses This book reveals a scientific process fraught with conversions between field and laboratory sound and image science and its various audiences

Mapping Israel, Mapping Palestine Jess Bier, 2017-06-30 Digital practices in social and political landscapes Why two researchers can look at the same feature and see different things Maps are widely believed to be objective and data rich computer made maps are iconic examples of digital knowledge It is often claimed that digital maps and rational boundaries can solve political conflict But in Mapping Israel Mapping Palestine Jess Bier challenges the view that digital maps are universal and value free She examines the ways that maps are made in Palestine and Israel to show how social and political landscapes shape the practice of science and technology How can two scientific cartographers look at the same geographic feature and see fundamentally different things In part Bier argues because knowledge about the Israeli military occupation is shaped by the occupation itself Ongoing injustices including checkpoints roadblocks and summary arrests mean that Palestinian and Israeli cartographers have different experiences of the landscape Palestinian forms of empirical knowledge including maps continue to be discounted Bier examines three representative cases of population governance and urban maps She analyzes Israeli population maps from 1967 to 1995 when Palestinian areas were left blank Palestinian state maps of the late 1990s and early 2000s which were influenced by Israeli raids on Palestinian offices and the legacy of British colonial maps and urban maps after the Second Intifada which show how segregated observers produce dramatically different maps of the same area The geographic production of knowledge including what and who are considered scientifically legitimate can change across space and time Bier argues
