From contextualization to universalization: Accelerating the knowledge production lifecycle for theoretical sciences in the twenty-first century Sujay Rao Mandavilli,2025-11-23 A great deal of literature has indeed been published about the research lifecycle in modern and contemporary times particularly over the past couple of decades beginning from the 1980 s or so it also goes without saying that the quantum of such output has been greatly amplified since the dawn of the twenty first likewise a great deal has also been written about product development lifecycles and technology lifecycles and all these concepts have been approaches from multiple points of view and from multiple perspectives However we consider all these to be highly inadequate and grossly deficient on two grounds because they do not cover the end to end process from contextualization of knowledge to communication and universalization or ubiquitization of knowledge but they are also innately and inherently biased towards commercializable products and practical technology not the knowledge creation process itself which is so essential to the escalation of scientific and cultural activity They must also be naturally be branded as Eurocentric given the fact that much of the knowledge production processes particularly in the social sciences have been centered around the western hemisphere with minimal to no tangible outputs from other parts of the world This is because the west has thus far ruled the roost in theoretical and conceptual knowledge in all facets of human knowledge but particularly in various fields of what people consider to be the social sciences It is there highly naturally and highly obvious that multiple data sets were not adequately considered or considered at all in the process of theorization or theory formulation and generation

Building on the core foundations of Anthropological Economics: Our second tranche of extensions on Anthropological Economics Sujay Rao Mandavilli,2026-01-10 The concepts of anthropological economics were introduced by us in the year 2020 in a paper entitled Introducing Anthropological Economics. The quest for an Anthropological basis for Economic theory, growth models and policy development for wealth and human welfare maximization and was published in the journal ELK Asia Pacific Journal of Social Sciences Volume 6 Issue 3 April-June 2020. The paper was subsequently published in Google books later in the same year. Subsequently several other papers were also published. The objective of our work on anthropological economics has been to attempt to merge the concepts and theoretical frameworks of the disciplines of Anthropology and Economics thereby creating a new sub-field in Economics called Anthropological Economics which is mired in Anthropological concepts and principles and sought to maximize not only human welfare and happiness but also wealth maximization across cultures while considering both the psychic unity of man, universal human needs and culture-specific factors. Thus the field of Anthropological Economics is expected to be inter-related to other disciplines of Economics but remain complementary to them i.e. it is not expected that it would intrude into other sub-fields of economics, replace them or override their principles in any way. It would therefore we anticipated draw upon other aspects of economic theory and enrich them suitably. It is therefore expected that all aspects of Economic theory would be taken into consideration for policy formulation and decision making including those of Anthropological economics and independent context-specific judgment would always be applied. The new and novel proposed field of Anthropological Economics proposes to take the idea of Human Welfare to its logical conclusion by extending the work already carried out in various sub-disciplines of economics such as those proposed by Amartya Sen and others and integrate it more tightly with various concepts in Anthropology. Many new tools and techniques have therefore been proposed as a part of our overall work and we believe these would suitably enrich the field of Economics as well. While many attempts have been made in the past to integrate the fields of Anthropology and Economics we hope anticipate, expect and believe that our endeavour would take this exercise to a much higher level by creating a new generation of Anthro-economists. We also hope that it will eventually help move mainstream economics away from Neo-classical approaches what we prefer to call legacy economics at this point in time to Anthropological and human-centric approaches. The present volume presents our second tranche of additional and auxiliary concepts in anthropological economics. The present volume must be read after the contents of the first two previous volumes have been fully read and ingested. We say this in the interests of absolute reader clarity. This is because the original paper and the previous extensions have not been reproduced here.

Repurposing epistemology for the twenty-first century and beyond: A natural accompaniment for the advancement of knowledge Sujay Rao Mandavilli, 2025-12-08. Let us begin this introduction by discussing what knowledge is. But what exactly is knowledge? Knowledge in its most common and mundane definition is taken to mean the information, understanding and skills that are acquired through formal or informal education, awareness, generation mechanisms or practical experience. Knowledge is also processed and formalized through a cognitive contact with reality involving employment and deployment of the senses and cognitive ability for the most part It also required a formal awareness of facts familiarity with practical and other situations and different forms of practical ability Mechanisms of acquiring knowledge can range from rote memorization to critical thinking and the mental processing of complex facts Most people also understand knowledge as a familiarity awareness or understanding of a subject including theoretical or practical understanding of facts information and skills that are consciously acquired by perceiving discovering or learning Knowledge may be acquired either individually or through collective social action The acquisition of knowledge is an active process involving cognitive functions like perception reasoning analysis and evaluation Knowledge is not static it is a continuous and dynamic process that builds and grows over time

Religion in the Twenty-first century and beyond: A Social sciences perspective Sujay Rao Mandavilli, 2024-04-19 The term Religion refers to a wide range of social cultural systems which include beliefs morals ethics religious practices thought worlds worldviews holy texts and scriptures sanctified holy places and institutions that typically relate to the general belief in a God or a supernatural entity Religion has been known in a wide variety of geographical contexts and situations and attested since very early times as a matter of fact even before the dawn of human civilization As a matter of fact there have been very few known human societies without some form of an organized or an informal religion In the past few centuries technology has progressed at a rapid pace and at a rate that would have been unimaginable just two centuries ago Many pundits predicted that the role played by religion in society would invariably and inevitably diminish alas such prophecies have not come to pass Religion and the role played by it in society remains as deeply entrenched as ever before As a matter of fact globalization has unleashed a clash of civilizations and has brought different and widely differing ideologies into direct contact with each other often unleashing waves of terror In the wide array and assortment of papers that we have been publishing over the years we have introduced many different concepts that we believe can greatly help in understanding the role religion plays in relation to society Readers can easily reference these papers In this paper we attempt to take our endeavours to a much higher level to analyse how the beneficial aspects of religion can be magnified and amplified and the negative implications of religion curtailed We also lay out the contours of social science research that can effectively tackle the menace of religious fanaticism and hatred and draw out a road map and a course of action other researchers and scholars can easily relate to This is far from an easy task but sociologists and anthropologists have a major role to play here Hence this oeuvre Other researchers and scholars must contribute in no small measure and those belonging to different parts of the world and hailing from different backgrounds and cultures There are fundamental schisms in today s scholarship and interdisciplinary and cross cultural enterprise is still sparse The Author once had a Muslim friend highly educated who was more interested in Greek civilization than in Islam The Author had another Muslim friend less educated who was a devout Muslim He did not even know how old Islam was and neither had he read the Qu ran fully Therefore we must avoid stereotypes and accept the fact that we are living in a multicultural world and in a

multispeed civilization The clash of civilizations is also a fact though it must be eventually mitigated Halloween parties in Saudi Arabia and anti Mullah rhetoric in Iran may be reactionary belligerent displays of wrath meaningful and permanent change must be brought about only through the realm of social sciences Many eminent sociologists of yore studied different forms of religion studiously and diligently even with some kind of an implicit or a feverish reverence or veneration yet many other scholars today are of an atheistic disposition tending to write of the utility of religion in the modern world Why this disconnect These are all issues we need to ruminate and ponder over if we are to solve social problems and build a meaningful and a deep rooted edifice of research We also need original thinkers not legions of camp followers of the west to use an aphorism by Sir CV Raman who was the first Indian to bring home the Nobel prize in science Intellectuals and thinkers must be aligned to social requirements and must be sensitive to cultural factors Otherwise the words of Carl Jung will come into play The deep critical thinker has become the misfit of the world this is not a coincidence To maintain order and control you must isolate the intellectual the sage the philosopher the savant before their ideas awaken people or as CS Lewis states The greatest evils in the world are not carried out by men with guns but by men in suits sitting behind desks Esoterism and nerdism appear to be the bane in various academic disciplines As Daniel Dennett put it many philosophers pursue isolated paths and dedicate their intellect purely to age old ideas without considering the advancements of modern science Scholars also do not think through issues deeply and comprehensively enough However change must be brought about slowly and in a graduated fashion It must be brought about tactfully and diplomatically without trampling on people s sensitivities As William Shakespeare put it Go wisely and slowly Those who rush stumble and fall We also need objectivity in mindset otherwise all attempts at scientific progress will fail Even the best or the most advanced and uptodate software cannot date the Ramayana or the Mahabharata accurately if objectivity in mindset does not exist Change can however be brought about As Jose Andres once famously stated The modernity of yesterday is the tradition of today and the modernity of today will be tradition tomorrow International Pulp and Paper Directory ,1999 Indian Journal of Social Science ,1994
