The free entitlement to education for three and four year olds Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2012-05-22 The Department for Education provides funding for local authorities to pay for three and four year olds to receive their entitlement to 15 hours of free education each week The Department devolves delivery to local authorities and providers but it is responsible for the overall value for money from the system In 2011 12 the Department s estimated funding for the entitlement of 1.9 billion provided over 800 000 three and four year olds with access to free education an estimated annual allocation of approximately 2 300 per child While the Department and local authorities have focused on ensuring places for children are available there has been less attention on how value for money can be secured and improved While there is evidence of educational improvement at age five the evidence that this is sustained is questionable The Department needs to do more to understand how educational benefits can be lasting There is not enough good information for parents to make informed choices and there is concern at reports that some families are still not receiving the entitlement free of charge It is important that all parents know what the entitlement is and that it should be provided completely free Early years education has the greatest benefit for children from disadvantaged backgrounds however these children have the lowest levels of take up and deprived areas have the lowest levels of high quality services The Department needs to identify and share good practice from those local authorities which are having the most success

The administration of examinations for 15-19 year olds in England Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Education Committee, 2012-07-03 Additional written evidence is contained in Volume 3 available on the Committee website at www.parliament.uk/educom

Participation by 16-19 year olds in education and training Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Education Committee, 2011-07-19 The Education Committee accepts that changes to student support needed to be made but says that the delay in deciding on allocations and the guiding principles for distribution should not have been allowed to happen The report states that the Government should have done more to acknowledge the Educational Maintenance Allowance s EMA combined impact on participation attainment and retention before it decided how to restructure financial support The bursary scheme which is to replace the EMA will inevitably lead to inconsistencies which could distort young people s choices of where to study It is not persuaded that bursaries administered by schools and colleges will necessarily be fairer or more discriminating than a slimmed down more targeted entitlement such as the EMA The report also highlights the difficulty of transferring data between schools and colleges and encourages the Department for Education to do more to ensure that information about pupils needs can move easily between educational institutions The Committee supports the Government s focus on Apprenticeships but urges it to protect quality at the same time as increasing numbers participating It also urges the Department for Education to fund the National Careers Service to provide face to face careers advice for young people T.P.'s Weekly Thomas Power

Reasonable Children Michael S. Pritchard, 1996 The public outcry for a return to moral education in our schools has raised more dust than it s dispelled Building upon his provocative ideas in On Becoming Responsible Michael Pritchard clears the air with a sensible plan for promoting our children s moral education through the teaching of reasonableness Pritchard contends that children have a definite but frequently untapped capacity for reasonableness and that schools in a democratic society must make the nurturing of that capacity one of their primary aims as fundamental to learning as the development of reading writing and math skills Reasonableness itself he shows can be best cultivated through the practice of philosophical inquiry within a classroom community In such an environment children learn to work together to listen to one another to build on one another s ideas to probe assumptions and different perspectives and ultimately to think for themselves Advocating approaches to moral education that avoid mindless indoctrination and timid relativism Pritchard neither preaches nor hides behind abstractions He makes liberal use of actual classroom dialogues to illustrate children s remarkable capacity to engage in reasonable conversation about moral concepts involving fairness cheating loyalty truth telling lying making and keeping promises obedience character and responsibility He also links such discussions to fundamental concerns over law and moral authority the roles of teachers and parents and the relationship between church and state Pritchard draws broadly and deeply from the fields of philosophy and psychology as well as from his own extensive personal experience working with children and teachers The result is a rich and insightful work that provides real hope for the future of our children and their moral education Harper's Weekly John Bonner, George William Curtis, Henry Mills Alden, Samuel Stillman Conant, Montgomery Schuyler, John Foord, Richard Harding Davis, Carl Schurz, Henry Loomis Nelson, John Kendrick Bangs, George Brinton McClellan Harvey, Norman Hapgood, 1871 The Saturday Evening Post ,1919 The People's Home Journal ,1921 The Accountant Tax Supplement ,1930
