Therefore, it is essential to determine how the efficacy of research can be enhanced at various levels, especially at the academic level. Of primary relevance in this is research connected to communication both human to human and through media and interactions with information sources. There exists a need for a resource for communications and information science researchers to enhance the effectiveness, impact and visibility of research. Cases on Developing Effective Research Plans for Communications and Information Science provides relevant frameworks for research in communications and information science. It elaborates on the strategic role of research at different levels of the information and communication society. Covering topics such as audience research, literary reading, mediation and social science theses, this case book is an excellent resource for libraries and librarians, marketing managers, communications professionals, students and educators of higher education, faculty and administration of higher education, government officials, researchers and academicians.

Social Science Methodologies for Management Research Vissanu Zumitzavan, 2026-01-01 This textbook serves as a comprehensive guide through this complex terrain of research in the discipline of management. It starts by exploring the philosophical foundations of research, specifically ontology and epistemology, developing a robust base for grasping how knowledge is constructed in management. The book then proceeds into practical methodologies, furnishing a clear roadmap through qualitative, quantitative and mixed methods approaches, research design and data analysis. It explores key concepts such as hypothesis development, validity, reliability and ethical considerations, ensuring that researchers are provided with the methodologies to pursue meaningful and rigorous studies.

By harmonising theory and practice, this text strives to inspire a thoughtful, methodologically sound approach to management research, bolstering a deeper understanding of both its challenges and its impactful potential. To situate these methodologies in the present moment, it also probes the profound ways artificial intelligence is beginning to reshape the landscape of academic inquiry and augment the capabilities of the modern researcher. Whether for students, researchers or established scholars, it serves as a valuable resource in mastering the art and science of research.

Populist Political Communication in Poland Agnieszka Stepinska, Artur Lipinski, Dorota Piontek, Agnieszka Hess, 2020-09-30 This book is the final product of the research project 'Populist political communication: political messages, media coverage and audience feedback'. It focuses on three categories of participants in populist political communication: that is, political actors, media and citizens. In particular, this study offers an insight into reasons behind the choice by Polish politicians and journalists to use populist messages, as well as factors fostering populist sentiments among Polish citizens. Its multi-dimensional approach utilizes communication, media and political science theories to make sense of production, dissemination, reception and impact of populist political messages. This publication combines several aspects of research on populism On the one hand it is a continuation of theoretical and interpretative discussions present in both Polish and foreign literature The correlation between Polish and foreign research is important as it allows for comparison of the results obtained in different research contexts as well as for further theoretical discussions on the methods of researching and describing the discussed phenomena On the other hand it attempts to capture a specificity of the Polish populist political communication in recent years 2015 2017 Lexical Priming Michael Pace-Sigge,Katie J.
