

The background of the cover is a microscopic image of cells, likely stained with fluorescent dyes. The cells are densely packed in the lower-left corner and more sparsely distributed towards the upper-right. The cells exhibit various colors, including bright green, yellow, and red, which likely represent different cellular components or states. Overlaid on this image is a thin, light blue line forming a smooth, bell-shaped curve, characteristic of a normal distribution. The curve starts near the bottom left, rises to a peak in the upper-left quadrant, and then descends towards the bottom right, passing over the cell clusters.
