South African National Cinema Jacqueline Maingard, 2007 South African National Cinema examines how cinema in South Africa represents national identities particularly with regard to race This significant and unique contribution establishes interrelationships between South African cinema and key points in South Africa s history showing how cinema figures in the making entrenching and undoing of apartheid This study spans the twentieth century and beyond through detailed analyses of selected films beginning with De Voortrekkers 1916 through to Mapantsula 1988 and films produced post apartheid including Drum 2004 Tsotsi 2005 and Zulu Love Letter 2004 Jacqueline Maingard discusses how cinema reproduced and constructed a white national identity taking readers through cinema s role in building white Afrikaner nationalism in the 1930s and 1940s She then moves to examine film culture and modernity in the development of black audiences from the 1920s to the 1950s especially in a group of films that includes Jim Comes to Joburg 1949 and Come Back Africa 1959 Jacqueline Maingard also considers the effects of the apartheid state s film subsidy system in the 1960s and 1970s and focuses on cinema against apartheid in the 1980s She reflects upon shifting national cinema policies following the first democratic election in 1994 and how it became possible for the first time to imagine an inclusive national film culture Illustrated throughout with excellent visual examples this cinema history will be of value to film scholars and historians as well as to practitioners in South Africa today

South African National Cinema Jacqueline Maingard, 2013-05-13 South African National Cinema examines how cinema in South Africa represents national identities particularly with regard to race This significant and unique contribution establishes interrelationships between South African cinema and key points in South Africa s history showing how cinema figures in the making entrenching and undoing of apartheid This study spans the twentieth century and beyond through detailed analyses of selected films beginning with De Voortrekkers 1916 through to Mapantsula 1988 and films produced post apartheid including Drum 2004 Tsotsi 2005 and Zulu Love Letter 2004 Jacqueline Maingard discusses how cinema reproduced and constructed a white national identity taking readers through cinema s role in building white Afrikaner nationalism in the 1930s and 1940s She then moves to examine film culture and modernity in the development of black audiences from the 1920s to the 1950s especially in a group of films that includes Jim Comes to Joburg 1949 and Come Back Africa 1959 Jacqueline Maingard also considers the effects of the apartheid state s film subsidy system in the 1960s and 1970s and focuses on cinema against apartheid in the 1980s She reflects upon shifting national cinema policies following the first democratic election in 1994 and how it became possible for the first time to imagine an inclusive national film culture Illustrated throughout with excellent visual examples this cinema history will be of value to film scholars and historians as well as to practitioners in South Africa today

German National Cinema Sabine Hake, 2008 German National Cinema is the first comprehensive history of German film from its origins to the present In this new edition Sabine Hake discusses film making in economic political social and cultural terms and considers the contribution of Germany s most popular films to changing definitions of genre authorship and film form The book traces the central role of cinema in the nation's turbulent history from the Wilhelmine Empire to the Berlin Republic with special attention paid to the competing demands of film as art entertainment and propaganda Hake also explores the centrality of genre films and the star system to the development of a filmic imaginary This fully revised and updated new edition will be required reading for everyone interested in German film and the history of modern Germany

To Change Reels Isabel Balseiro, Ntongela Masilela, 2003 With the end of apartheid South African cinema is at a turning point in its history But how can we speak of a national cinema when so far only an elite minority has participated in it How can filmmakers draw upon the past as they take South Africa into a new artistic era This collection offers an unprecedented look at a film industry that has excluded its country's black majority in both representation and production and that now must overcome collusion between racist ideology and film form Until recently filmmakers could work only within a culture that reluctantly took black South Africans into account Therefore to explore what South African cinema has been and could become the authors do not limit their discussion to film production but approach cinema as a manifestation of cultural history How has the purpose of cinema been viewed at different times in South Africa by different governments and social groups What is the relation between film and a sense of nationhood in South Africa What has happened when whites aim to make black films How has film been viewed in relation to the notion of leisure in South Africa Such questions lead to a consideration not only of films made by South Africans in South Africa but also of an unfolding film culture within a series of stages that have yet to give rise to a national cinema

Theorising National Cinema Valentina Vitali, Paul Willemsen, 2019-07-25 Why do we think of clusters of films as national cinema Why has the relationship between the nation and film become so widely and uncritically accepted Theorising National Cinema is a major contribution to work on national cinema by many of the leading scholars in the field It addresses the knotty and complex relationship between cinema and national identity showing that the nationality of a cinema production company and the films that it made have not always been seen as pertinent The volume begins by reviewing and rethinking the concept of national cinema in an age of globalisation and it goes on to chart the parallel developments of national film industries and the idea of a nation state in countries as diverse as Japan South Korea Russia France and Italy The issues of a national cinema for nation states of contested status with disputed borders or displaced peoples is discussed in relation to film making in Taiwan Ireland and Palestine The contributors also consider the future of national cinema in an age of trans national cultural flows exploring issues of national identity and cinema in Latin America Asia the Middle East India Africa and Europe Theorising National Cinema also includes a valuable bibliography of works on national cinema

Cinema in a Democratic South Africa Lucia Saks,2010-07-19 Lucia Saks uses South African cinema as a lens through which to view cultural changes resulting from the end of apartheid in 1994 She examines how media transformed the meaning of race and nation during this period and argues that as apartheid was disbanded and new racial constructs allowed South Africa quickly sought a new mode of representation as a way to distance itself from the violence and racism of the half century prior as well as to demonstrate stability amid social disruption This rapid search for a new way to identify and portray itself is what Saks refers to as the race for representation She contextualizes this race in terms of South African history the media apartheid sexuality the economy community early South African cinema and finally speculates about the future of counter cinema in present day South Africa

Jews, Nazis and the Cinema of Hungary David Frey,2017-02-28 Between 1929 and 1942 Hungary s motion picture industry experienced meteoric growth It leapt into Europe s top echelon trailing only Nazi Germany and Italy in feature output Yet by 1944 Hungary s cinema was in shambles internal and external forces having destroyed its unification experiments and productive capacity This original cultural and political history examines the birth unexpected ascendance and wartime collapse of Hungary s early sound cinema by placing it within a complex international nexus Detailing the interplay of Hungarian cultural and political elites Jewish film professionals and financiers Nazi officials and global film moguls David Frey demonstrates how the transnational process of forging an industry designed to define a national culture proved particularly contentious and surprisingly contradictory in the heyday of racial nationalism and antisemitism
