you for lunch then next day you've had a mini meal prepped. Generally though, meal prepping refers to preparing 3-7 days worth of food at a time. This kind of thing like keeping lunches for the week all at once instead of eating them throughout the day. You can use this same technique for breakfast, lunch, dinner, and snacks. Meal prepping involves not wasting food and eating it outside your comfort zone whether that's a meal plan or a budget. When keeping a meal plan, you eat healthy meals without having to decide what to eat each day. It is good for convenience and for more than just taste. With meal prepping, you get to eat the same thing for a week so if you don't like leftovers or get bored with food, meal prepping is not for you. If having nutrition in mind while maximizing time and budget is important to you, then meal prepping is for you. It's kind of like a meal plan. Generally, you'll see one meal for the day or maybe one other person to a whole meal. Meal planning for a whole meal would be quite difficult because there are many things to consider. For example, if food is stored in the refrigerator, it would be slow to eat it. In addition to that, the way food is packed can impact how long it stays fresh. For example, if food is packed in a way that's not acceptable, it might not be edible. Always begin with the FDA's food safety guidelines and then follow them according to your own preferences. In general, I don't like to eat more than four days worth of food at a time. I find that it's better to eat food that's fresh. Meal Prep Joseph Marion, 2017-07-05 In this book, you will find 165 healthy, delicious, easy-to-prepare meals.
