

Hound GROUP

Even though most dogs in the hound group were bred to hunt, they can have very different physical appearances. Some hounds use their sense of scent to hunt, while others can run their prey down.

There are 32 different breeds in the hound group, and they come in various coat types and colors. Some are taller and were bred to follow hunters who traveled by horse; others are shorter and were bred to follow hunters on foot. One quality some hounds share is their ability to make a sound called "baying." This sound is different from howling and is unique to hound breeds.
