Malleus Maleficarum: The Witch's Hammer Heinrich Kramer,James Sprenger, It has been recognized even from the very earliest times during the first gropings towards the essential conveniences of social decency and social order that witchcraft is an evil thing an enemy to light an ally of the powers of darkness disruption and decay Sometimes no doubt primitive communities were obliged to tolerate the witch and her works owing to fear in other words witchcraft was a kind of blackmail but directly Cities were able to to co ordinate and it became possible for Society to protect itself precautions were taken and safeguards were instituted against this curse this bane whose object seemed to blight all that was fair all that was just and good and that was well appointed and honourable in a word whose aim proved to be set up on high the red standard of revolution to overwhelm religion existing order and the comeliness of life in an abyss of anarchy nihilism and despair In his great treatise De Ciuitate Dei S Augustine set forth the theory or rather the living fact of the two Cities the City of God and the opposing stronghold of all that is not for God that is to say of all that is against Him This seems to be a natural truth which the inspired Doctor has so eloquently demonstrated in his mighty pages and even before the era of Christianity men recognized the verity and nations who had never heard the Divine command put into practice the obligation of the Mosaic maxim Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live Vulgate Maleficos non patieris uiuere Douay Wizards thou shalt not suffer to live Exodus xxii 18 It is true that both in the Greek and in the earlier Roman cults worships often directly derived from secret and sombre sources ancient gods or rather demons had their awful superstitions and their horrid rites powers whom men dreaded but out of very terror placated fanes men loathed but within whose shadowed portals they bent and bowed the knee perforce in trembling fear Such deities were the Thracian Bendis whose manifestation was heralded by the howling of her fierce black hounds and Hecate the terrible Queen of the realm of ghosts as Euripides calls her and the vampire Mormo and the dark Summanus who at midnight hurled loud thunderbolts and launched the deadly levin through the starless sky Pliny tells us that the worship of this mysterious deity lasted long and dogs with their puppies were sacrificed to him with atrocious cruelty but S Augustine says that in his day one could scarce find one within a while that had heard nay more that had read so much as the name of Summanus De Ciuitate Dei iv 23 Nevertheless there is only too much reason to believe that this devil god had his votaries although his liturgy was driven underground and his supplicants were obliged to assemble in remote and secret places Towards the end of the fifth century the Carthaginian Martianus Capella boldly declares that Summanus is none other than the lord of Hell and he was writing it may be remembered only a few years before the birth of S Benedict some think that he was still alive when the Father of All Monks was born Although in Greek States the prosecution of witches was rare in large measure owing to the dread they inspired yet cases were not unknown for Theoris a woman of Lemnos who is denounced by Demosthenes was publicly tried at Athens and burned for her necromancy It is perhaps not impertinent to observe that many strange legends attached to the island of Lemnos which is situated in the Aegaeon Sea nearly midway between Mt Athos and the Hellespoint It is one of the largest of the group having an area of some 147 square miles Lemnos was sacred to Hephaestus who is said to have fallen here when hurled by Zeus from Olympus The workshops of the Smith God in ancient legend were supposed to be on the island although recent geologists deny that this area was ever volcanic and the fires which are spoken of as issuing from it must be considered gaseous Later the officinae of Hephaestus were placed in Sicily and the Lipari Islands particularly Hiera The worship of Hephaestus in later days seems to have degenerated and to have been identified with some of the secret cults of the evil powers This was probably due to his connexion with fire and also to his extreme ugliness for he was frequently represented as a swarthy man of grim and forbidding aspect It should further be noted that the old Italian deity Volcanus with whom he was to be identified is the god of destructive fire fire considered in its rage and terror as contrasted with fire which is a comfort to the human race the kindly blaze on the hearth domestic fire presided over by the gracious lady Vesta It is impossible not to think of the fall of Lucifer when one considers the legend of Hephaestus Our Lord replied when the disciples reported Domine etiam daemones subiiciuntur nobis in nomine tuo Lord the devils also are subject to us in Thy Name Uidebam Satanam sicut fulgur de coelo cadentem I saw Satan like lightning falling from Heaven and Isaias says Quomodo cecidisti de coelo Lucifer qui mane oriebaris Corruisti in terram qui uulnerabas gentes How art thou fallen from Heaven O Lucifer who didst rise in the morning How art thou fallen to the earth that didst wound the nations Milton also has the following poetic allusion Nor was his name unheard or unadorned In Ancient Greece and in Ausonian land Men called him Mulciber and how he fell From Heaven they fabled thrown by angry Jove Sheer o'er the Chrystal Battlements from Morn To Noon he fell from Noon to dewy Eve A Summers day and with the setting Sun Dropt from the Zenith like a falling Star On Lemnos though an Isle thus they relate Erring for he with his rebellious rout Fell long before nor aught availed him now To have built in Heaven high Towers nor did he scape By all his Engines but was headlong sent With his industrious crew to build in hell Accordingly during the years 319-21 a number of laws were passed which penalized and punished the craft of magic with the utmost severity A pagan diviner or haruspex could only follow his vocation under very definite restrictions He was not allowed to be an intimate visitor at the house of any citizen for friendship with men of this kind must be avoided The haruspex who frequents the houses of others

shall die at the stake such is the tenor of the code It is hardly an exaggeration to say that almost every year saw a more rigid application of the laws although even as to day when fortune telling and peering into the future are forbidden by the Statute Book diviners and mediums abound so then in spite of every prohibition astrologers clairvoyants and palmists had an enormous clientele of rich and poor alike However under Valens owing to his discovery of the damning fact that certain prominent courtiers had endeavoured by means of table rapping to ascertain who should be his successor upon the throne in the year 367 a regular crusade which in its details recalls the heyday of Master Matthew Hopkins was instituted against the whole race of magicians soothsayers mathematici and theurgists which perhaps was the first general prosecution during the Christian era Large numbers of persons including no doubt many innocent as well as guilty were put to death and a veritable panic swept through the Eastern world The early legal codes of most European nations contain laws directed against witchcraft Thus for example the oldest document of Frankish legislation the Salic Law Lex salica which was reduced to a written form and promulgated under Clovis who died 27 November 511 mulcts sic those who practise magic with various fines especially when it could be proven that the accused launched a deadly curse or had tied the Witch's Knot This latter charm was usually a long cord tightly tied up in elaborate loops among whose reticulations it was customary to insert the feathers of a black hen a raven or some other bird which had or was presumed to have no speck of white This is one of the oldest instruments of witchcraft and is known in all countries and among all nations It was put to various uses The wizards of Finland when they sold wind in the three knots of a rope If the first knot were undone a gentle breeze sprang up if the second it blew a mackerel gale if the third a hurricane But the Witch's Ladder as it was often known could be used with far more baleful effects The knots were tied with certain horrid maledictions and then the cord was hidden away in some secret place and unless it were found and the strands released the person at whom the curse was directed would pine and die This charm continually occurs during the trials Thus in the celebrated Island Magee case March 1711 when a coven of witches was discovered it was remarked that an apron belonging to Mary Dunbar a visitor at the house of the afflicted persons had been abstracted Miss Dunbar was suddenly seized with fits and convulsions and sickened almost to death After most diligent search the missing garment was found carefully hidden away and covered over and a curious string which had nine knots in it had been so tied up with the folds of the linen that it was beyond anything difficult to separate them and loosen the ligatures In 1886 in the old belfry of a village church in England there were accidentally discovered pushed away in a dark corner several yards of incle braided with elaborate care and having a number of black feathers thrust through the strands It is said that for a long while considerable wonder was caused as to what it might be but when it was exhibited and became known one of the local grandmothers recognized it was a Witch's Ladder and what is extremely significant when it was engraved in the Folk Lore Journal an old Italian woman to whom the picture was shown immediately identified it as la ghirlanda delle streghe The laws of the Visigoths which were to some extent founded upon the Roman law punished witches who had killed any person by their spells with death whilst long continued and obstinate witchcraft if fully proven was visited with such severe sentences as slavery for life In 578 when a son of Queen Fredegonde died a number of witches who were accused of having contrived the destruction of the Prince were executed It has been said in these matters that the ecclesiastical law was tolerant since for the most part it contented itself with a sentence of excommunication But those who consider this spiritual outlawry lenient certainly do not appreciate what such a doom entailed Moreover after a man had been condemned to death by the civil courts it would have been somewhat superfluous to have repeated the same sentence and beyond the exercise of her spiritual weapons what else was there left for the Church to do In 814 Louis le Pieux upon his accession to the throne began to take very active measures against all sorcerers and necromancers and it was owing to his influence and authority that the Council of Paris in 829 appealed to the secular courts to carry out any such sentences as the Bishops might pronounce The consequence was that from this time forward the penalty of witchcraft was death and there is evidence that if the constituted authority either ecclesiastical or civil seemed to slacken in their efforts the populace took the law into their own hands with far more fearful results Season of the Witch Bragi Schut,2011 Chicanoliteratur

Heiner Bus,1990 Season of the Witch Natasha Mostert,2014-08-29 In her award winning novel Mostert blends alchemy the art of memory high magic and murder to create a highly original psychological thriller Gabriel Blackstone is a cool hip thoroughly twenty first century Londoner with an unusual talent A computer hacker by trade he is also a remote viewer able to slam a ride through the minds of others But he uses his gift only reluctantly until he is contacted by an ex lover who begs him to find her step son last seen months earlier in the company of two sisters And so Gabriel visits Monk House a place where time seems to stand still and where the rooms are dominated by the coded symbol of a cross and circle Gabriel becomes increasingly bewitched by the house and by its owners the beautiful and mysterious Monk sisters But even as he falls in love he knows that one of them is a killer But which one And what is the secret they are so determined to protect
