

"Our Sister Killjoy" -Summary

The novel is divided into four sections. The first is called Into a Bad Dream where she travels to Germany. Her elite hosts took every care to make her comfortable, from luxurious Mercedes-Benz that comes to pick her to lavish dinner and expensive European wine. She meets Sammy, who is her fellow countryman, whose real name she "did not catch." Sammy laughs loudly and when she does not laugh, he smiles continuously. Sissie feels he had been placed there to sing praises of the European land. She feels shivered and uneasy. She eventually realizes that she is the only black person there, though she does not feel insecure or inferior of her identity or race. The section ends with "power to decide/ Who is to live/ Who is to die." ; which throws some light on the colonial and the post colonial aspect of the novel, considering it was power which decided who survived and who died.
