Beginners and Dummies Barbara Dawson, 2020-08-18 Meal prepping is making a meal or recipe then portioning it out to grab and go meals for later. If you've ever kept your leftovers from dinner to take with you for lunch then next time you've made a mini meal prepped. Generally though meal prepping refers to making 3-7 days worth of food at a time. Think of it like making your lunches for the week all at once instead of making your lunch every day. You can use this same technique for breakfast, lunch, dinner, and snacks. Meal prepping doesn't necessarily waste and reduce time to eat outside your home whether that's at a restaurant or a budget. When making your meal plan, ask yourself the question: "How long will it take to eat healthy meals without having to do it every day?" Meal prepping is not for everyone. It is good for those who value convenience and more time than others. With meal prepping, you generally eat the same thing for a few days in a row so you don't look at leftovers or get bored with food. Meal prepping is not for those who are maximizing their time or budget. It is more of a lifestyle where you are doing something different every day. Meal prepping is not for those who are generally not seen in meal prep or maybe one other person doing a whole meal. Meal prepping for a whole family would be quite difficult but it would be a good idea to have a meal plan. A meal plan is stored in the refrigerator and a slow cooker in the kitchen. In addition to the way food is packed, the individual nuances of your refrigerator can impact the food. The refrigerator's temperature, the type of food, and the texture of the food will be a factor. Always begin with the refrigerator's guidelines to help the FDA and then follow them to suit your own preferences. In general, I don't like to eat more than five days worth of food. I find that to be a good amount of food to eat.
