Hop, Skip, Go Stephen Baker, John Rossant, 2019-11-12 Urban expert John Rossant and business journalist Stephen Baker look beyond the false promises of the past to examine the real future of transportation and the repercussions for the world's cities the global economy the environment and our individual lives Human mobility dominated for a century by cars and trucks is facing a dramatic transformation Over the next decade new networked devices from electric bikes to fleets of autonomous cars will change the way we move They will also disrupt major industries from energy to cars give birth to new mobility giants and lead to a redesign of our cities For Rossant and Baker this represents the advance of the Information Revolution into the physical world This will raise troubling questions about surveillance privacy the dangers from hackers and the loss of jobs But it also promises startling efficiencies which could turn our cities green and perhaps save our planet In an engaging deeply reported book the authors travel to mobility hotspots from Helsinki to Shanghai to scout out this future And they visit the companies putting it together One Divergent3d is devising a system to manufacture cars with robots and 3D printers PonyAI a Chinese Silicon Valley startup builds autonomous software that perceives potholes oncoming trucks and wayward pedestrians and guides the vehicle around them Voom an Airbus subsidiary is racing with dozens of others to operate fleets of air taxis that fly by themselves Hop Skip Go is about us billions of people on the move Underlying each stage of mobility from foot to horse to cars and jets are the mathematics of three fundamental variables time space and money We measure each trip we take whether to Kuala Lumpur or the corner drugstore As the authors make clear the coming mobility revolution will be no different As they unveil the future the authors explore how these changes might revamp our conception of global geography the hours in our days and where in the world we might be able to go
