Sterry, F. Cole, 2017-11-30 Saharan trade has been much debated in modern times but the main focus of interest remains the medieval and early modern periods for which more abundant written sources survive The pre Islamic origins of Trans Saharan trade have been hotly contested over the years mainly due to a lack of evidence Many of the key commodities of trade are largely invisible archaeologically being either of high value like gold and ivory or organic like slaves and textiles or consumable commodities like salt However new research on the Libyan people known as the Garamantes and on their trading partners in the Sudan and Mediterranean Africa requires us to revise our views substantially In this volume experts re assess the evidence for a range of goods including beads textiles metalwork and glass and use it to paint a much more dynamic picture demonstrating that the pre Islamic Sahara was a more connected region than previously thought      Collecting Inspiration: Edward C.
