Innovation in Low-tech Firms and Industries Hartmut Hirsch-Kreinsen,David Jacobson,2008 It is a general understanding that the advanced economies are undergoing a fundamental transformation into knowledge based societies There is a belief that this is based on the development of high tech industries This work offers a discussion concerning the relevance of low tech industries for industrial innovativeness in the knowledge economy

Formaini,2004 The Crisis of Innovation in Water and Wastewater Duncan A. Thomas,Roger R. Ford,2005 This significant new book highlights a little acknowledged but potentially catastrophic crisis of innovation in the global water sector which institutions and industries are frighteningly ill equipped to tackle or even accept It suggests potential new technology and policy approaches to overcome both current and future problems The book explores how technological innovation is vital to help provide sustainable water in both the UK and developing countries However innovation is being overlooked in the face of global trends to privatize and regulate water utilities The authors highlight how the global water sector is failing to respond to increasingly complex world needs and continues to build largely unsustainable centralized infrastructures opposing more appropriate distributed and local modern technologies The book also includes suggestions for potentially innovative technology and policy solutions to meet escalating global water and wastewater demands Importantly the authors adopt a long term perspective that crosses both disciplinary and institutional boundaries and include an international comparative perspective covering a diverse range of examples and countries This comprehensive book will have a broad appeal amongst researchers and academics with an interest in technology management innovation studies geography and development studies It will also be a valuable asset for water regulators and governmental and non governmental organisations working in this field

An Industrial Governance Perspective on Three Ways of Standard-making in the U.S. Information Technology Industry Kwonjoong Choh, 1997 The Legacy of Herbert Simon in Economic Analysis Peter E. Earl, 2001 Herbert A. Simon has been a leading contributor to cognitive psychology, computer science, public administration, philosophy, and statistics, and is the winner of the 1978 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economics. As this authoritative collection demonstrates, his impact on economics has been felt in areas as diverse as the theory of the firm and economic organization, consumer behaviour, law and economics, and environmental economics. Central to his work is the notion of bounded rationality, the mismatch between human decision-making capacities and the scale of the decision problems that people face, which results in satisficing rather than optimising behaviour, and his belief that economic research should start from the study of actual behaviour rather than being based on convenient but unrealistic assumptions. Peter Earl's choice of articles shows both the kind of economics that emerges when Simon's philosophy is followed comprehensively and what happens when neo-classical economists partially adopt his ideas.

The Legacy of Robert Lucas, Jr Kevin D. Hoover, 1999 This three-volume collection celebrates the legacy of Lucas, winner of the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science in 1994, founder of the new classical school, and one of the most influential macroeconomists of the late 20th century. It presents his 11 most influential articles on macroeconomics, together with articles by a wide variety of other key economists who extend, develop, criticize, or are otherwise significantly influenced by his seminal ideas. Volume I (18 articles) discusses foundations of the new classical macroeconomics, Lucas at the beginning of the new classical macroeconomics, rational expectations, intertemporal substitution, and the natural rate hypothesis. Volume II (29 articles) covers empirical testing of the natural rate hypothesis, policy ineffectiveness, business cycles, and econometrics, and policy non-invariance. Volume III (24 articles) addresses dynamic optimization, asset pricing, monetary and fiscal policy, and endogenous growth.
