Student Name:

Sign languages are the unique and natural form of communication developed by the deaf community, consisting of hearing-impaired people using gestures, facial expressions, and body movements to express meaning. These languages are different from natural languages and their grammar follows very closely to existing natural languages, consisting of gestures, intonation, and body movements.

The history of sign language shows that it existed, though in various other names, and in various regions of the world, much earlier than through documentation of these names. However, written records that could be used to prove the existence of sign languages did not exist, because there was no need for written records for the deaf community until a relatively very recent time.

The evolution and development of sign language goes back to the 18th century. French educators, then known as the "Panthéon" educators, started teaching the deaf children in their school. They used gestures of their own to teach the children and the children, in turn, used these gestures to communicate with each other. This is how sign language was born. The first deaf school in the United States was established in 1817, by Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet, who was a hearing person, and he was the first deaf teacher. The first deaf school in the United States was established in 1817, by Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet, who was a hearing person, and he was the first deaf teacher.

Learning to communicate through sign languages is not an easy task. There are many different sign languages, including American Sign Language (ASL), British Sign Language (BSL), and French Sign Language (FSL). These languages are not related to each other, but they are all based on a single system of coding language. These languages use hand gestures, facial expressions, and body movements to convey meaning.

The evolution of sign languages is interesting. They are gestural, non-auditory, non-verbal, and non-oral, and they are based on a single system of coding language.

Simplified Signs: A Manual Sign-Communication System for Special Populations, Volume 1. John D.

Bonvillian, Nicole Kissane Lee, Tracy T. Dooley, Filip T. Loncke, 2020-07-30 Simplified Signs presents a system of manual sign communication intended for special populations who have had limited success mastering spoken or full sign languages. It is the culmination of over twenty years of research and development by the authors. The Simplified Sign System has been developed and tested for ease of sign comprehension memorization and formation by limiting the complexity of the motor skills required to form each sign and by ensuring that each sign visually resembles the meaning it conveys. Volume 1 outlines the research underpinning and informing the project and places the Simplified Sign System in a wider context of sign usage historically and by different populations. Volume 2 presents the lexicon of signs totalling approximately 1000 signs each with a clear illustration and a written description of how the sign is formed as well as a memory aid that connects the sign visually to the meaning that it conveys. While the Simplified Sign System originally was developed to meet the needs of persons with intellectual disabilities, cerebral palsy, autism or aphasia, it may also assist the communication needs of a wider audience such as healthcare professionals, aid workers, military personnel, travellers or parents and children who have not yet mastered spoken language. The system also has been shown to enhance learning for individuals studying a foreign language. Lucid and comprehensive, this work constitutes a valuable resource that will enhance the communicative interactions of many different people and will be of great interest to researchers and educators alike. Clinical Signs in Neurology William W.
