3. What are the main differences between the first section in the document (before the division) and the last section (after the division)?

However, these models, although they may offer some sort of security for shareholders, they are subject to the same risks as the underlying assets of the fund. These risks are mainly liquidity risks and interest rate risk. Other risks are the risks of price fluctuations in the underlying assets of the fund.

As a consequence, the more diversity there is in the system, the more it is able to withstand external challenges. This is because the system is more able to self-organise and self-repair.
