1. Websites

A website comprises a collection of web pages accessible via the Internet, much like the one you're viewing now. Each web page is what you see displayed on your screen when you enter a web address, click on a link, or perform a search engine query. These pages can host a variety of content, including text, colors, videos, graphics, animations, and sounds.

When someone provides you with a web address, it typically leads to the home page of their website. The home page serves as an introduction, showcasing what the site offers in terms of information or services. From there, users can navigate to other sections of the site through clickable links. Depending on the site owner's objectives, a website may consist of a single page or hundreds of pages.

Dynamic Web Programming: A Beginner's Guide Marty Matthews, John Cronan, 2009-10-28 Publisher's Note Products purchased from Third Party sellers are not guaranteed by the publisher for quality authenticity or access to any online entitlements included with the product. Move beyond basic Web design by learning to create dynamic Web content. To create a dynamic page on which content changes in response to events requires programming and the potential use of databases. Dynamic Web Programming A Beginner's Guide starts by covering HTML XHTML and CSS. You will then learn to use JavaScript to implement elements such as rollover events, popups and calculations. The book explains how to use PHP to create guest books, blogs and page transitions as well as how to implement a database driven Web site with MySQL. Web
