The Double-edged Sword Zoltán Simon,2003 This examination of American novels from 1900 to 1940 traces the literary treatment of the technological sublime a simultaneous awe and fear of technology The American technological sublime is a construct that can be useful in understanding the often conflicted and ambivalent reactions of enthusiasm and anxiety exaltation and depression associated with the patterns of development experienced in the US in this transitory period The first four decades of the 20th century saw the culmination of the technological sublime in America the loss of the innocently one sided enthusiasm and technological republicanism of the 19th century to a fragmented often paranoiac and largely pessimistic vision of technology that became dominant of the literature after World War II After an evaluation of earlier scholarship on the American technological sublime the study examines four important decades in the development of the American technological sublime and some of the literary responses to it Three Soldiers, with an Intro John Dos Passos,1932 The Freeman ,1921 Novels, 1920-1925 John Dos Passos,2003 These novels record the emergence of John Dos Passos as a chronicler of the upheavals of the early 20th century In One Man's Initiation 1917 an idealistic young American serving as a volunteer ambulance driver in France learns of the fear uncertainty and camaraderie of war Three Soldiers engages in a deeper exploration of the impact of World War I upon an increasingly fractured civilization The novel depicts the experiences of three Americans as they fight in the final battles of the war and then confront a world in which peace offers little respite from the dehumanizing servility and regimentation of militarized life Manhattan Transfer is a kaleidoscopic portrait of New York City in the first two decades of the 20th century that follows the changing fortunes of more than a dozen characters as they strive to make sense out of the chaos of modern urban existence Patterns of Culture Ruth Benedict,1934 A study of the civilizations of the Zuni Indians the natives of Dobu and the Kwakiutl Indians Outlook and Independent ,1924
