Thoughtshredder Chris Elliott, 2012-08-01 In June of 2006 my father passed away I was 41 years old and had just lost my father I hugged my wife seeking comfort for my loss Then I realized I felt no loss I held her tighter and longer nothing I hugged my children still nothing I finally realized that losing my father started when I was 5 years old It started with that first slap across my face that caused my nose to bleed and it ended or so I thought with his death in a hospital bed in Arizona Between the ages of 5 and 41 I grew up physically and mentally but was still immature emotionally I spent many of those years haunted by the paranoia of becoming my father I assumed that someday I would pass through some magical door or make some sort of anti wish with a genie and wake up as my father I questioned for years whether this similarity or that one meant I was becoming him I finally realized that I was him and I was me I am my father in some ways I have to be His genes are in me and I spent the first 11 years of my life with him His behavior and his genetics are affecting me I am 5'7" tall on a good day have his green eyes dark hair that is struggling to stay with me and have near sightedness just like he did Physically I have taken on many of his traits without control over them I just am part of him Once I realized I was also part of him emotionally and behaviorally I could then break through the paranoia of being him and allow myself to be me I first had to realize that being me meant being him too Discover the real you For most of my life it was easy for me to say how much I hated my dad What I didn't realize was that those words and thoughts also pertained to me If I hated him I must also hate the part of me that is him If I hate him I also hate me It took a journey of identifying how much I really loved him before I could love me I found my real purpose and my Authentic Self It has been freeing and I can now overcome anything
