Department of the Navy, 2014      Assumed the Watch. Moored as Before. Terence Fitzgibbons, 2009-09-22 The USS Pelican or the Pelican t as it was affectionately known was the craziest most nerve racking ship in the navy How was that possible though if it remained tied to the pier essentially for two years This account contains the musings and observations of one junior officer attempting to stay sane aboard mighty Pelican Likewise it includes his attempts to do the same on a different ship this one doing circles in the middle of the Pacific Ocean

DDG-51 Engineering Training Roland J. Yardley, 2009 Much of the training for the engineering watchstanders of Arleigh Burke class destroyers that is currently done underway could be done in port Training could also be done on simulators at considerable savings in time money fuel and ship wear and tear This monograph discusses how training simulator use could improve engineering watchstanders proficiency before ships go to sea reserving time at sea for fine tuning the training      Military Readiness Sharon L. Pickup, 2010-10 Since 2000 the Navy has undertaken a number of initiatives to achieve greater efficiencies and reduce costs For example it has reduced crew sizes on some of its surface ships and has moved from instructor led to more computer based training This report reviews the training size composition and capabilities of the Navy s ship crews It assesses the extent to which the Navy 1 used valid assumptions and standards in determining crew sizes for cruisers and destroyers and 2 has measured the impact of changes to its training programs incl the time it takes personnel to achieve various qualifications This report analyzed Navy procedures for determining crew size compared to guidance and analyzed current Navy metrics to measure training impact      Overseas Basing of U.S. Military Forces Michael J. Lostumbo, Michael J. McNerney, Eric Peltz, Derek Eaton, David R. Frelinger, 2013-04-15 This independent assessment is a comprehensive study of the strategic benefits risks and costs of U S military presence overseas The report provides policymakers a way to evaluate the range of strategic benefits and costs that follow from revising the U S overseas military presence by characterizing how this presence contributes to assurance deterrence responsiveness and security cooperation goals      An Examination of Options to Reduce Underway Training Days Through the Use of Simulation Roland J. Yardley, 2008 U S Navy surface combatant ship crew training involves a combination of shore based onboard pier side and underway training Underway training is expensive however and it increases wear and tear on operating equipment Furthermore constrained budgets and increasing recapitalization costs have forced the Navy to examine various methods such as increased use of simulators to reduce the annual operating costs of the fleet Technological improvements have increased the fidelity and realism of simulators and simulation is being used more widely for training within the U S Navy in other navies and in commercial shipping companies Although the Navy s surface combatant community currently uses simulators in its training regimen an increased use of simulation could potentially improve training efficiency sustain training readiness and reduce underway days Focusing on the DDG 51 Arleigh Burke class of surface combatants RAND examines the training requirements of surface forces determines where credit is granted for the use of simulation estimates what training is done underway examines simulation technology and identifies areas where simulation could be substituted for underway training without any decrease in readiness The authors find that although most exercises are done underway many could be done in port with or without the use of simulators Accordingly the Navy should consider 1 investing in shore based engineering simulators 2 directing that exercises that can be done in port be done in port and 3 accelerating the upgrades that are slowly providing DDG 51 class ships with an embedded engineering training capability publisher s website
