

A man in a grey tank top is holding a large print of Van Gogh's 'Self-Portrait with Bandaged Ear'. He is looking up and to the right. The background is a workshop or studio filled with various artworks, including a large painting of a landscape with a figure, and a woman in a white shirt is working on a painting in the background. The floor is covered with a patterned rug.

Van Gogh On Demand China And The Readymade:

Van Gogh on Demand Winnie Wong, 2014-03-24 Unsettles contemporary art's unspoken hierarchies and topples modernist and postmodernist assumptions about originality, authenticity and authorship. Reviews In a metropolis in south China lies Dafen, an urban village that houses thousands of workers who paint van Goghs, Da Vincis, Warhols and other Western masterpieces for the world market, producing an astonishing five million paintings a year. Winnie Wong infiltrated this world first, investigating the work of conceptual artists, then working as a dealer, apprenticing as a painter, surveying wholesalers and retailers in Europe, East Asia and North America, establishing relationships with local leaders and organizing a conceptual art exhibition for the Shanghai World Expo. The result is Van Gogh on Demand, a fascinating book about a little known aspect of the global art world, one that sheds surprising light on the workings of art artists and individual genius. Wong describes an art world in which migrant workers, propaganda makers, dealers and international artists make up a global supply chain of art. She examines how Berlin-based conceptual artist Christian Jankowski, who collaborated with Dafen's painters to reimagine the Dafen Art Museum, unwittingly appropriated the work of a Hong Kong-based photographer Michael Wolf. She recounts how Liu Ding, a Beijing-based conceptual artist, asked Dafen assembly line painters to perform at the Guangzhou Triennial, styling himself into a Dafen boss. Through such cases, Wong shows how Dafen's painters force us to reexamine our preconceptions about the role of Chinese workers in redefining global art. A fantastically detailed exploration of a topic which touches the heart of many of the issues surrounding China's economic rise. South China Morning Post

Van Gogh on Demand Winnie Wong, 2014-03-24 In a manufacturing metropolis in south China lies Dafen, an urban village that famously houses thousands of workers who paint van Goghs, Da Vincis, Warhols and other Western masterpieces for the world market, producing an astonishing five million paintings a year. To write about work and life in Dafen, Winnie Wong infiltrated this world first, investigating the work of conceptual artists who made projects there, then working as a dealer, apprenticing as a painter, surveying wholesalers and retailers in Europe, East Asia and North America, establishing relationships with local leaders and organizing a conceptual art exhibition for the Shanghai World Expo. The result is Van Gogh on Demand, a fascinating book about a little known aspect of the global art world, one that sheds surprising light on the workings of art artists and individual genius. Confronting big questions about the definition of art, the ownership of an image and the meaning of originality and imitation, Wong describes an art world in which idealistic migrant workers, lofty propaganda makers, savvy dealers and international artists make up a global supply chain of art and creativity. She examines how Berlin-based conceptual artist Christian Jankowski, who collaborated with Dafen's painters to reimagine the Dafen Art Museum, unwittingly appropriated the work of a Hong Kong-based photographer Michael Wolf. She recounts how Liu Ding, a Beijing-based conceptual artist, asked Dafen assembly line painters to perform at the Guangzhou Triennial, neatly styling himself into a Dafen boss. Taking the Shenzhen-based photojournalist Yu Haibo's award-winning photograph from the

Amsterdam's World Press Photo organization she finds and meets the Dafen painter pictured in it and traces his paintings back to an unlikely place in Amsterdam Through such cases Wong shows how Dafen's painters force us to reexamine our preconceptions about creativity and the role of Chinese workers in redefining global art Providing a valuable account of art practices in an ascendant China Van Gogh on Demand is a rich and detailed look at the implications of a world that can offer countless copies of everything that has ever been called art

Osiris, Volume 38 James Evans, Adrian Johns, 2023-07-18

Perceptively explores the shifting intersections between algorithmic systems and human practices in the modern era How have algorithmic systems and human practices developed in tandem since 1800 This volume of Osiris deftly addresses the question dispelling along the way the traditional notion of algorithmic code and human craft as natural opposites Instead algorithms and humans have always acted in concert depending on each other to advance new knowledge and produce social consequences By shining light on alternative computational imaginaries Beyond Craft and Code opens fresh space in which to understand algorithmic diversity its governance and even its conservation The volume contains essays by experts in fields extending from early modern arithmetic to contemporary robotics Traversing a range of cases and arguments that connect politics historical epistemology aesthetics and artificial intelligence the contributors collectively propose a novel vocabulary of concepts with which to think about how the history of science can contribute to understanding today's world Ultimately Beyond Craft and Code reconfigures the historiography of science and technology to suggest a new way to approach the questions posed by an algorithmic culture not only improving our understanding of algorithmic pasts and futures but also unlocking our ability to better govern our present

Screening the Art World Temenuga Trifonova, 2025-10-01

Screening the Art World explores the ways in which artists and the art world more generally have been represented in cinema Contributors address a rarely explored subject art in cinema rather than the art of cinema by considering films across genres historical periods and national cinemas in order to reflect on cinema's fluctuating imaginary of art and the art world The book examines the intersection of art history with history in cinema cinema's simultaneous affirmation and denigration of the idea of art as truth the dominant often contradictory ways in which artists have been represented on screen and cinematic representations of the art world's tenuous position between commercial good and cultural capital

Museums as Cultures of Copies Brita Brenna, Hans Dam Christensen, Olav Hamran, 2018-12-07

Few institutions are warier of copies than museums Few fields of knowledge are more prone to denounce copies as fake than the heritage field Few discourses are as concerned with authenticity aura originals and provenance as those concerning exhibiting and collecting So why is it that these are institutions fields and discourses where copies proliferate and copying techniques have thrived for hundreds of years Museums as Cultures of Copies aims to make the copying practices of museums visible and to discuss from a range of interrelated perspectives precisely what function copies fulfil in the heritage field and in museums today With contributions from Europe and Canada the book interrogates the meaning of copies and presents copying as a fully integrated part of museum work Including chapters on ethnographic mannequins digitalized photos death masks museum documentation and mechanical models contributors consider how copying as a cultural form changes according to time and place and how new forms of copying and copy technologies challenge and expand museum work today Arguing that copying is at the basis of museum practice and that new technologies and practices have been taken up and developed in museums since their inception the book presents both heritage work and copies in a new light Museums as Cultures of Copies should be of great interest to academics scholars and postgraduate students working in the fields of museum and heritage studies as well as visual studies cultural history and archaeology It should also be essential reading for museum practitioners Politics in China William A. Joseph, 2024 A comprehensive and authoritative introduction to China's political history contemporary political system and key policy areas such as the environment population management and public health Politics in China is an authoritative introduction to how the world's second most populous nation and rapidly rising global power is governed today Written by leading China scholars each chapter offers an accessible overview of a key topic in Chinese politics The opening section provides readers with a firm grounding in China's modern political history covering the decline and fall of the last imperial dynasty and the rise to power of the Chinese Communist Party CCP and the radicalism of the era of Mao Zedong 1949-76 the dramatic economic reforms carried out by Deng Xiaoping and his disciples 1978 to 2012 and the era of Xi Jinping 2012 present who has consolidated more personal power than any CCP leader since Mao The next section sets the framework of politics in the People's Republic of China PRC with chapters on the ideology of the CCP the structure and dynamics of the political system the role of law and legal reform and the policies behind the country's spectacular economic transformation The book then shifts to a discussion of a series of major political issues in China today reform and resistance in the countryside changes and challenges in the cities the arts and culture the environment and climate change public health population policy and internet politics The final chapters of the book covers politics in four important areas located on China's geographic periphery Tibet Xinjiang Hong Kong and Taiwan The fourth edition of Politics in China has been thoroughly updated and includes a new chapter on the rise and rule of Xi Jinping It is essential reading not only for students studying the PRC but also for any reader interested in learning how China has evolved in recent times how its political system works and about the most important challenges it faces in years ahead The Girl at the Baggage Claim Gish Jen, 2017-02-28 Drawing on a trove of personal accounts and cutting edge research a timely and extremely important book The Washington Post from the acclaimed award winning author of Thank You Mr Nixon that shows how our worldviews are shaped and what that might mean for the shared future of the United States and China As East and West become more and more entwined we also continue to baffle one another What's more important self sacrifice or self definition Do we ultimately answer to something larger than ourselves a family a religion a troop Or is our mantra To thine own self be true Gish Jen shows how our worldviews are shaped by what cultural psychologists call independent and interdependent models of selfhood Coloring what we perceive remember do make and tell imbuing everything from our ideas about copying to our conceptions of human rights these models help explain why the United States produced Apple while China created Alibaba and what that might mean for our future As engaging as it is fascinating The Girl at the Baggage Claim is a book that profoundly transforms our understanding of ourselves and our time Learning from Shenzhen Mary Ann O'Donnell, Winnie Wong, Jonathan Bach, 2017-02-07 This volume developed out of two conferences Shenzhen China Utopias Dystopias held at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 2011 and Learning from Shenzhen held at the Shenzhen Land Use Resources and Planning Commission in 2011 as part of the Shenzhen Urbanism Biennale ECIP data The Many Names of Anonymity Winnie Wong, 2025-11-10 Explores how the function norms and meaning of artists names in Chinese modernity have been misunderstood Challenging contemporary procedures for establishing attribution chronology and authenticity in Chinese art Winnie Wong explores the means methods and stakes of recovering the names of an anonymous community of artists To examine how Western art history has misconstrued and miscategorized names and identities in Chinese art she looks to conflicting features of modernity the European attachment of singular names to individuals and their works and the Chinese use of socially contingent names that often are not attached to material labor and sometimes operate against it Wong charts the genealogy of this naming problem by bringing to life the artists of the Qing Empire s trade with Europeans at the port of Guangzhou centering on a group of portraitists known by names that were recorded in a pidgin language Chin Qua Chit Qua Spoilum Lam Qua and Ting Qua Many of these paintings survive today yet scholars have identified only a handful of the painters identities Pushing against Western norms that have shaped our understanding of authorship Wong reveals that these artists shared names created works in multiples and signed their pieces with different names or none at all This lavishly illustrated volume explores portraiture across media including unfired clay reverse painting on glass watercolor on paper oil on canvas and the daguerreotype to propose new ways of studying anonymity copying and the emergence of author names in the Sino European visual culture of the long eighteenth century After the Fact Thomas Demand, Fiona Venables, 2005 Van Gogh and Gauguin Douglas W. Druick, Peter Zegers, Britt Salvesen, Kristin Hoermann Lister, Mary C. Weaver, Art Institute of Chicago, Van Gogh Museum, Amsterdam, 2001 After the Copy Winnie Won Yin Wong, 2010 Since 1989 Dafen village in Shenzhen China has supplied millions of hand painted oil on canvas paintings each year to global consumer markets Accused of copying Western masterpieces and spurred by the Chinese party state s creative industry policies Dafen village s eight thousand painters have been striving to become original artists Simultaneously conceptualist artists from outside Dafen village have engaged with the creative alienation of Dafen painters by purchasing their labor in works of appropriation art This study examines the discourses of creativity originality and appropriation that frame Dafen s painting production and sets them against an ethnography of flexible work in the South Chinese painting trade It explores the myriad ways in which Dafen village lends itself to intellectual and aesthetic explorations of the separation of painting labor from conceptual labor as enacted in both modernist and postmodernist framings of artistic authorship The study begins by charting the historical categorization of Chinese export painting and the emergence of the painting factory as a cultural imaginary of Sino Western trade It then examines the political stakes of creativity as constructed in Dafen television propaganda made by the national and local party state Then turning to a single Vincent van Gogh specialty workshop and the transnational wholesale and retail of van Gogh trade paintings it theorizes the relationship of craft to modernist authorship and signature style Finally it scrutinizes cosmopolitan conceptual artists and designers collaborations with Dafen painters exploring the ethical and aesthetic terms of universal creativity raised by the Dafen readymade Establishing continuities between Dafen production and the making of high art while challenging their putative antinomies this study shows how the ideology of individual creativity undergirds the cultural industry policies of the local party state the consumer demand for authentic craft and the appropriation of labor in contemporary art

Matthew Wong, Vincent Van Gogh Matthew Wong, 2024 The Chinese Canadian artist Matthew Wong 1984 2019 employed colour expressively using thick and dynamically applied paint to instil his personality in his work Self taught he explored Western and Chinese art history himself finding an important example in the work of Vincent van Gogh The two artists gave expression to their inner worlds with a similar immediacy There are striking parallels moreover between the lives of Wong and Van Gogh both spent a great deal of time searching for their vocation in life before eventually finding it in painting The connections between the two artists are examined in detail in this publication through a survey of Matthew Wong s impressive body of work From publisher s website viewed March 12 2024
