Reforming Corporate Retail Investor Protection Diane Bugeja, 2019-12-12. The spate of mis-selling episodes that have plagued the financial services industries in recent years has caused widespread detriment to investors. Notwithstanding numerous regulatory interventions curtailing the incidence of poor investment advice, remains a challenge for regulators particularly because these measures are taken in a fire-fighting fashion without adequate consideration being given to the root causes of mis-selling. Against this backdrop, this book focuses on the sale of complex investment products to corporate retail investors by drawing upon the widespread mis-selling of interest rate hedging products (IRHP) in the UK and beyond. It brings to the fore the relatively understudied field concerning the different degrees of investor protection mechanisms applicable to individual retail investors as opposed to corporate retail investors by taking stock of past regulatory reforms and forthcoming regulatory initiatives as well as more importantly the conclusions reached by the judiciary in IRHP mis-selling claims. The conclusions are particularly interesting: corporate retail investors are in a vulnerable position when compared to individual retail investors. The former are exposed to a heightened risk of mis-selling meaning that regulatory intervention should be targeted accordingly. The recommendations made as a result of these findings are further supported by insights emerging from behavioural law and economic theories. This book is aimed at researchers, lawyers and students with an interest in the financial regulation field who are keen to explore potential regulatory reforms to the investment services regime that address the root causes of mis-selling and restore a level playing field amongst all retail investors.

Making It Ellen T. Meiser, 2024-10-11. The restaurant industry is one of the few places in America where workers from lower class backgrounds can rise to positions of power and prestige. Yet with over four million cooks and food preparation workers employed in America's restaurants, not everyone makes it to the high status position of chef. What factors determine who rises the ranks in this fiercely competitive pressure cooker environment? Making It explores how the career path of restaurant workers depends on their accumulation of kitchen capital, a cultural asset based not only on their ability to cook but also on how well they can fit into the workplace culture and negotiate its hierarchical structures. After spending 120 hours working in a restaurant kitchen and interviewing fifty chefs and cooks from fine dining establishments and greasy spoon diners across the country, sociologist Ellen Meiser discovers many strategies for accumulating kitchen capital. For some it involves education and the performance of expertise; others climb the ranks by controlling their own emotions or exerting control over coworkers. Making It offers a close and personal look at how knowledge, power and interpersonal skills come together to determine who succeeds and who fails in the high pressure world of the restaurant kitchen.
