- 1 The disease or condition you have is already happening but there are many things you can do to slow or even reverse your symptoms Medication can't take away your autoimmune disease but your body can heal itself if you give it the tools
- 2 If you don't understand what your body needs to function and heal you can't make wise decisions about what you should do to keep it going You might decide to take someone else's advice about diet but unless you understand what your body needs you won't know what advice to take and what advice to leave
- 3 Your cells need certain nutrients in order to function properly If you aren't providing those nutrients your cells won't work as well and a malfunction at the cellular level could eventually impact any aspect of your health
