Drawing on a range of voices from different fields and nations sharing empirical and theoretical experiences, the volume aims to initiate a global dialogue among journalism practitioners, researchers and students.

Journalism in the Data Age Jingrong Tong, 2022-03-05. This book is your guide to understanding what journalism is and could be in an age of digital technology and datafication. Journalism today is entwined with the digital. Stories can come from crowdsourcing and content farms. They can incorporate data visualisations and virtual reality. This book explores the development of journalism in this era of digital tech and big and open data. It explores the crucial new developments of online journalism, data journalism, computational journalism and entrepreneurial journalism and what this means for our understanding of journalism as a profession and as a part of society. Using a wealth of international case studies, Jingrong Tong explores contemporary issues such as AI, automated news, robot reporters and algorithmic accountability. Digital business models from venture capital to tech start-ups to crowd funding. Audiences and dissemination in an age of platform capitalism. Questions of censorship, democracy and state control. Digital challenges to journalistic autonomy and legitimacy. With clear explanations throughout, Journalism in the Data Age introduces you to a range of ideas, debates and key concepts. Data Journalism and the Regeneration of News Alfred Hermida, Mary Lynn Young, 2019-02-13. Data Journalism and the Regeneration of News traces the emergence of data journalism through a scholarly lens. It reveals the growth of data journalism as a subspecialty cultivated and sustained by an increasing number of professional identities, tools and technologies, educational opportunities and new forms of collaboration and computational thinking. The authors base their analysis on five years of in-depth field research, largely in Canada, an example of a mature media system. The book identifies how data journalism's development is partly due to it being at the center of multiple crises and shocks to journalism, including digitalization, acute mis- and disinformation concerns and increasingly participatory audiences. It highlights how data journalists, particularly in well-resourced newsrooms, are able to address issues of trust and credibility to advance their professional interests. These journalists are operating as institutional entrepreneurs in a field still responding to the disruption effects of digitalization more than 20 years ago.
