Alleged census miscount prompts city to file suit

By KIM REBEL
Staff Reporter

Denton is expected to file suit against the Census Bureau within two weeks for what city officials claim is a miscount of the 1980 population.

Of immediate concern is tuition. Denton will be the first Texas city to file suit against the bureau, said Angelo, administrative assistant to the city manager, next Monday.

Following an emergency executive session Monday, the City Council voted unanimously to authorize City Attorney C.J. Taylor to file suit in Federal District Court in Sherman.

"THERE ARE A lot of federal funds at stake. We feel it is our duty. If we take this head, maybe some other cities will join us," Angelo said.

The bureau's report, the Denton placed population at 40,000. Angelo said city officials believe the population is about 50,000. "It is almost that will allow Denton to receive more federal money."

The city would be eligible for a number of federal programs, programs and community development funds. Denton is one of the 50,000 population count is reached.

Children's Director Bob Noland, serving as acting city manager at the emergency council meeting, said a number of Denton's population, including down membership at N.T.U. and Denton State Normal dropped at least 1,500 more students than the bureau's figures.

"The city does include students at school who live in Denton. They are considered residents," Noland said.

IN A LETTER to former Congressman Ray Roberts, City Manager Chris Whiting said "the whole result of this census may well affect the city of Denton by hundreds and thousands of dollars over the next decade."

Angelo said the city census 30,000 households, compared to the bureau's estimate of 28,545. In addition, the bureau estimated 1.79 percent per household, but the city estimates 2.75.

Angelo said the household vacancy rate is "totally unrealistic," as determined by the bureau.

"IN ITS 'HOUSEHOLD survey,' the city displayed data on the vacancy rate... and found 5,284 vacant households. The number allowed by the U.S. Bureau of Census," Angelo said.

The bureau estimated 1.4 percent of the homes in Denton were vacant.

"Any local resident or person attempting to relocate in the city will usually find the vacancy rate," Angelo said.

State Treasurer, U.S. District Judge Robert W. Coleman ruled the suit failed to accurately count residents of Denton and that the error was immaterial. Angelo said the suit was not in court for some time.

"This is just something that needs to be done. It is well known that we are not to lose," Angelo said.
