This section of the paper will be concerned with the development of the theory of the heat equation on metric spaces. This will be done by first defining a metric space, then defining the heat equation on such a space, then defining the solution to the heat equation, and finally, defining the heat kernel. The heat kernel is a function that describes the evolution of a function over time on a metric space. It is defined as the solution to the heat equation at a specific time. The heat kernel is a fundamental tool in the study of metric spaces and their applications in various fields of mathematics and physics.
