Mediated Geographies and Geographies of Media Susan P. Mains, Julie Cupples, Chris Lukinbeal, 2015-10-12 This is the first comprehensive volume to explore and engage with current trends in Geographies of Media research. It reviews how conceptualizations of mediated geographies have evolved. Followed by an examination of diverse media contexts and locales the book illustrates key issues through the integration of theoretical and empirical case studies and reflects on the future challenges and opportunities faced by scholars in this field. The contributions by an international team of experts in the field address theoretical perspectives on mediated geographies, methodological challenges and opportunities posed by geographies of media, the role and significance of different media forms and organizations in relation to socio spatial relations, the dynamism of media in local global relations and in depth case studies of mediated locales. Given the theoretical and methodological diversity of this book it will provide an important reference for geographers and other interdisciplinary scholars working in cultural and media studies, researchers in environmental studies, sociology, visual anthropology, new technologies and political science who seek to understand and explore the interconnections of media space and place through the examples of specific practices and settings

Human Capital and Global Business Strategy Howard Thomas, Richard R. Smith, Fermin Diez, 2013-11-07 Human capital the performance and the potential of people in an organisation has become an increasingly urgent issue for business leaders. Dramatic demographic shifts, the globalisation of organisations, increasing business complexity and generational differences are causing many organisations to place a more deliberate focus on human capital as a key element in strategic planning and execution. This book helps business leaders determine how to address human capital as part of their business strategy to drive value and realise the potential of the organisation. Topics are presented clearly allowing readers to quickly grasp and apply key concepts and ideas. The authors share both their academic research and practical experience from around the world providing first hand case studies and examples to help bring theoretical topics to life. With a strong practitioner focus this book will provide business leaders and HR professionals with new insights into how to improve business performance through a unique strategic approach to human capital

The Oxford Handbook of Archaeological Network Research Tom Brughmans, Barbara J. Mills, Jessica Munson, Matthew A. Peeples, 2023-11-08

Network research has recently been adopted as one of the tools of the trade in archaeology used to study a wide range of topics: interactions between island communities, movements through urban spaces, visibility in past landscapes, material culture similarity, exchange and much more. This Handbook is the first authoritative reference work for archaeological network research, featuring current topical trends and covering the archaeological application of network methods and theories. This is elaborately demonstrated through substantive topics and case studies drawn from a breadth of periods and cultures in world archaeology. It highlights and further develops the unique contributions made by archaeological research to network science, especially concerning the development of spatial and material culture network methods and approaches to studying long term network change. This is the go-to resource for students and scholars wishing to explore how network science can be applied in archaeology through an up-to-date overview of the field.

Understanding Big Social Networks: Applied Methods for Computational Social Science Morteza Shahrezaye, 2019

Social Networks Shraddha Chaulagain, 2016

Understanding and Reshaping Social Networks with Advanced Computational Techniques Yuan Yuan (Expert on online social networks), 2021

Social networks are powerful in modeling interdependence among individuals. Recently, the availability of large scale social network data and advances in computational tools have facilitated the rapid development in social network research. However, a few important aspects of social networks have been understudied and advanced computational tools may not directly help social scientists draw scientific knowledge. My thesis thus aims to move towards applying and developing computational tools that help investigate important questions on social networks. The first component of my thesis focuses on understanding social interactions and networks which offers implications for reshaping social networks to improve social cohesion. Specifically, I examine the formation and dynamics of social networks with a focus on social exchange and long ties. Utilizing large scale social network data and computational tools, I first discuss benefits of the social exchange with dissimilar people in social networks and then I proceed to study dynamic social networks and focus on long ties or the social ties that bridge different communities in dynamic networks Methodologically I develop a novel interdisciplinary approach that combines game theory and machine learning techniques Second I study what features on online platforms may improve social interactions and reshape social networks To do so I utilize large scale data of online social media and provide two examples in the field The first example is the identification of social contagion of online gift giving This study examines how receiving a gift would promote the person to pay forward the gift and also discusses how this social contagion can promote social interactions and tight social bonds The other example is to examine how the designs of peer effects and prosociality on online social platforms encourage users offline fitness behavior Methodologically both studies involve advanced causal inference and machine learning techniques to test the main hypotheses Moreover I develop computational tools that analyze social network data In the final component of my thesis I introduce an algorithm for controlled experiments in social networks This algorithm detects heterogeneous spillover effects how the treatment assignments received by one's network neighbors affect a person's behavior in the data of networked experiments This interdisciplinary algorithm combines approaches in causal inference machine learning and network science Toward a Better Understanding of Evolving Social Networks Bobo Nick,2013 The Hope Clinic for Women, Ltd.
