My Mourning Routine

Living with chronic illness and neurodegenerative disease, maintaining a mourning routine feels as though the only means to my peace and stability is to do what will only increase my burden and self-doubt on any given day.

I struggle with gratitude, planning, a practice that helps me focus on the positives and not dwell on the fact that I have a condition that will only continue to sap my life until I am gone in both body and mind.

The routine also helps in creating a way of coping with living with a great deal of stress and a lot of uncertainty. Some days I feel like I am drowning, but I know that I am not alone. I am surrounded by people who love me and who will do anything to help me.

These small, consistent steps make a difference in creating and sustaining my life.
