Variable	Coefficient	Standard Error	t-statistic	p-value
Intercept	1.2	0.3	4.0	0.000
Gender (Male)	0.5	0.2	2.5	0.012
Age (Young)	0.8	0.1	8.0	0.000
Age (Middle)	0.3	0.1	3.0	0.001
Age (Older)	-0.1	0.1	-1.0	0.317

The regression results indicate that the number of publications is significantly positively affected by being male and being in the young or middle age groups. The coefficient for "Gender (Male)" is 0.5, indicating that males publish 0.5 more papers on average than females. The coefficients for "Age (Young)" and "Age (Middle)" are 0.8 and 0.3, respectively, indicating that younger and middle-aged individuals publish more papers than older individuals. The coefficient for "Age (Older)" is -0.1, indicating that older individuals publish 0.1 fewer papers on average than younger individuals. The p-values for the gender and age variables are all less than 0.05, indicating that these variables are statistically significant.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of aerobic and resistance exercises. The control group did not exercise. HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week period. The exercise group showed a significant decrease in both HR and BP compared to the control group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.
