Live 8 Concert

On July 2, 2005, ten huge concerts took place in locations around the world. The event was called Live 8. The concerts were not money-making events, and they were not staged to raise money for a good cause either. The goal of Live 8 was to raise people's awareness of world poverty and to convince world leaders to do something about it.

Seven of the July 2 concerts took place in Europe – two in the United Kingdom, one in France, one in Germany, one in Italy, and one in Russia. Two took place in North America – one in the United States and one in Canada. There was one concert in Japan and one in South Africa.

The date chosen for the concerts was during the week before the 2005 G8 Summit. The G8 Summits are yearly meetings of the leaders of the richest countries in the world. One more concert, called the Final Push, was scheduled for July 6 in Scotland, just in time for the start of the G8 Summit which was also held in Scotland.

Organizers of the event wanted world leaders of the G8 Summit to take action to help end world poverty.
