Andrew Norman,2025-11-30 There has been speculation over the loss of the Royal Mail Ship RMS Titanic ever since the tragic event of her sinking which occurred during the night of Sunday 14 to Monday 15 April 1912 Could it have been the fault of her captain Edward J Smith Hitherto no one has managed to explain the mindset of Titanic s captain Edward Smith and thereby comprehend why on a pitch black night in April 1912 he drove his ship full tilt into an ice field when he knew that there were icebergs present Was the captain mentally ill No not in the sense of having one of the traditional major psychiatric conditions such as schizophrenia psychosis bipolar disorder etcetera because this would have manifested itself earlier on in his lifetime Captain Smith was aged 62 at the time of the disaster Was he suffering from dementia There is no evidence that this was the case In fact Captain Smith s state of mind provides a classic example of what was described by the ancient Greeks more than 2 000 years ago As the reader will shortly discover This book contains hitherto unpublished photographs for example of Laura May Cribb from the author s hometown of Poole in Dorset who survived the sinking and of
