Testes (singular Testis):

- Situated in the pelvic region outside the abdominal cavity within a pouch called as scrotum.
- Scrotum is a small muscular sac that contains and protects the testes. It is a part of the external male genitalia and is located behind the penis.
- The testes are placed outside the abdominal cavity so as to maintain a temperature that is 2-2.5°C lower than the average human body temperature.
- The lower temperature in testes is required for spermatogenesis as the normal human body temperature can lead to mutation in the sperms.
- Testis is oval in shape. It is 4-5cm long and 2-3cm wide.
