The referendum on separation for Scotland Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Scottish Affairs Committee, 2012-05-08 This report considers whether the wording of the referendum question proposed by the Scottish Government is biased and what should be done to ensure that a fair and clear question is put to the Scottish electorate. Based on the evidence it is concluded that the question Do you agree that Scotland should be an independent country is biased. This is important because wording can affect the result of a referendum. This referendum must be and be seen to be fair and acceptable to those on both sides of the argument. It is essential that the result commands wide acceptance. It is now widely agreed that the Electoral Commission is the appropriate body to regulate a referendum and ensure that the wording of the question is clear and fair. This means an exhaustive process of testing of proposed words and how the options are put to the voters. This will take some time and therefore it must be started soon. It need not wait until a referendum Bill is drafted but debate needs to move on to the policies and issues of separation. The best course is for the parties to agree jointly what question wordings should be put to the Commission. If a consensus cannot be reached those parties who can agree should approach the Commission together. Our objective is that all can accept the advice of the Commission on a clear and neutral question which can be incorporated into the legislative process from the very beginning.
