Council discusses Lee lot, paving plans for three city streets

STEVE SMITH
SMITH@LACLEDERE.COM

Plans for using the empty H.D. Lee lot downtown were discussed at Monday's Lebanon City Council meeting.

City Administrator Troy Schulte was asked about the status of a proposal to build residential and retail space at the site of the old H.D. Lee building downtown. The structure at 200 Commercial Street, once home to a clothing manufacturer, burned down last year, leaving an empty lot.

Schulte said the Lee site will be the second phase of a project by Bryan Companies.

"Once they complete their apartment development off of Emmert, they are going to move to the H.D. Lee building site, develop that into first floor retail and up to two floors of residential on that building," he said. "They have a five year clock to get that done."

Schulte said plans are being discussed for using the space during those five years so it doesn't "become a dirt lot for the next five years." This could involve temporary facilities, food trucks, programming activities. He said an example of how the space could be

Buffalo woman accused of stealing thousands from former employer

LCR STAFF

A Buffalo woman is charged with stealing from a Laclede County business.

According to online court documents, Erika J. Pennington faces six counts of felony charges of stealing $250 or more from her former employer.

Witnesses told investigators that a total of more than $26,000 was stolen from the business.

According to the court documents, Pennington was born in 1983, but no birth date is given.

The probable cause statement says that on March 3, a Lebanon Police Department (LPD) officer interviewed witnesses at an area business, the name redacted from the probable cause statement, for a reported theft.

The witness told the officer that Pennington had been making deposits for the store, but alleged that she kept the store's cash deposits. The witness said she discovered the stealing when she was "looking at financial records and noticed the total amounts were off," according to court documents.

She told investigators, Pennington kept approximately $800 in cash deposits from Feb. 24 and March 4, 2025. "But she knows that Pennington has been doing this since May of 2024," she said she had asked Pennington about the missing money.

"Pennington admitted to taking the cash deposits and (said) that she wasn't giving the money back," the witness told officers, according to the probable cause statement.

The witness, at that time, estimated

Despite the Stay Puft Marshmallow Man's appearance at the Cowan Civic Center on Sunday, it was less a source of horror and more a photo-opportunity for attendees of the Route 66 Comic Con.

The Route 66 Comic and Toy Convention is an annual comic convention held in Lebanon and presented by Massey's Comics. Evergoers visited vendors with a variety of items, from Legos and comic books to industry celebrities.

Organizer Fines Massey said that attendance was up slightly from last year at around 1,000 people.

"It was just a really fun day, and we're glad that we got to do this and we're a little bit of what we love and share that with the community," Massey said. "And we just couldn't do that without all the volunteers and the sponsors and everybody who helped to make it possible."

Massey said World Wrestling Entertainment legend Jimmy Hart drew a long line during the event's opening. Comic artist and writer Freddie Williams II, who Massey said is currently drawing a 100-page manuscript of the Universe and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle series, was also popular
