Alternative Education in Thailand Against the Background of Reform and Globalization Michael Ernest Jones, 2010-10-13 The establishment of alternative education private foundations and networks linked to socio political and spiritual advocacies distinguishes the Thai social movement in this research This research is a qualitative study that has made use of historical accounts to associate with data gathered from extensive interviews and case studies in order to inquire as to whether alternative education represents an historical spiritual tradition of opposition to reform hegemony and whether it has had an impact on state reform efforts Also investigated was whether there are some historical patterns associated with the manner in which the state of Thailand has dealt with the forces of globalization and whether the collective action by informal movements of Thai people also has the same predictable pattern of response to the global Analysis and comparison of these issues contribute in determining the values associated with people in the alternative education movement and the motives and intentions associated with state initiated reforms A further related aspect explored is the degree of Thai ness and the embedded historical pattern of both the alternative education movement and education reform These inquiries were answered through the collection of data from three different trips to Thailand over a four year period the last trip a one year stay that permitted case studies and observations at three alternative schools and the interview of a host of participants from home school parents and students to Ministry of Education staff and officers In examining the data a clearer notion of what lies underneath the idea of Buddhist education and spirituality became clearer and how educational reform based on Western ideals and notions has not taken into account Buddhism and culture as education This illumination brings new insight and also raises a new question as to the difference between social movements in a Buddhist nation such as Thailand and social movements in the West

Case Studies in Forensic Epidemiology Sana Loue, 2007-05-08 Epidemiology has often been defined as the study of the distribution of disease together with the distribution of factors that may modify that risk of disease As such epidemiology has often been reduced to a methodology only providing a mechanism for the study of disease that is somehow removed separate and apart from the populations that serve as its focus Epidemiology however is much more than that The discipline provides a way of perceiving and knowing the world and of relating to the communities whose health and disease patterns we are trying to understand As such its usefulness extends past the construction of questionnaires the detective work inherent in tracing the source of an infection or the analysis of data Rather epidemiology serves as a point of reference and a linkage between various domains of reality in the courtroom between a community's injuries and those alleged to be responsible for those violations between the community striving to effectuate changes to improve its health and environment and the lawmakers and policymakers whose actions may dictate or control the likelihood of that change and between mainstream populations and those who become or remain marginalized and stigmatized due to disease or perceived disease
