Flying Blind Michael E. Brown, 2019-01-24 Flying Blind offers an astute analysis of the role of organizational forces in initiating and shaping weapons programs Michael E Brown concerns himself with how weapons programs begin and why they turn out as they do In the process he redresses a large imbalance in our understanding of how nations arm themselves In an unmatched account constructed from massive archival work and material declassified through the Freedom of Information Act the author provides a detailed description of all fifteen postwar U S strategic bomber programs from the B 35 to the B 2 Challenging the conventional wisdom about arms races and the weapons acquisition process Brown marshals compelling evidence that Air Force reactions to strategic developments not technological opportunism or industry initiative brought about many major innovations in those programs He also discusses competing explanations of the cost schedule and performance problems that plague U S acquisition efforts He maintains that powerful strategic and bureaucratic forces lead American military organizations to set their performance requirements far beyond the state of the art and to push their programs as fast as possible This he argues is a recipe for disaster Developing a comprehensive explanation of the cost and performance problems that plague modern weapons programs he presents policy recommendations designed to address these issues

Donnini,2000-06-30 Although the United States Air Force was founded upon strategic bombardment theory and advocacy the service has traditionally had tremendous difficulty in obtaining the adequate funding for bombers that it requires to fulfill its mandate For more than 45 years senior Air Force leaders both military and civilian have struggled to convince decision makers in the White House and in Congress that modern manned bomber forces were needed acceptable and affordable In this study Donnini produces one of the most exhaustive analyses ever undertaken of Congressional subcommittee decision making in the funding of defense procurement initiatives He concludes that no program achieved measurable success of deployment with the original force structure requested and only two the B 1B and B 2A received approval to acquire lesser numbers of aircraft for operational use Donnini found that an important part of each new bomber program appeared to be funding support through federal appropriations If the right amounts were appropriated the programs survived if lesser amounts were given chances for program failure were good however was funding support the deciding factor This book used multiple case studies and the unorthodox methodology of applied content analysis of Congressional budget hearings to examine Air Force efforts to fund the most recent main bombers it sought the B 70 B 1A B 1B and B 2A and to determine measurements of success The author s findings have implications concerning the way the United States handles procurement initiatives for major new weapon systems considered fundamental necessities for national defense      Designing a Strategic Bomber David J Gordan,2025-05-22 Developing a strategic bomber in today s budget constrained environment is a challenging prospect The design requirements must address conflict across the spectrum and remain relevant regardless of the enemy America faces The operational concept for strategic bombers must address a multitude of considerations despite the complexity of a changing environment The key to enduring relevancy is operational adaptability through flexible organizations tactics and technology This monograph examined the employment of strategic bombers during three campaigns B 29 operations in the Pacific Theater B 52 operations during Desert Storm and strategic bomber operations during Operation Enduring Freedom This examination revealed that the Air Force modified the technology and tactics employed by strategic bomber crews during the course of each campaign The operational concept for strategic bombers has evolved over time Air Force leaders must strive for complete knowledge of the enemy and operational environment but assume that they will never achieve complete understanding To overcome this limitation the Air Force must design flexibility into the organizations tactics and technology they use to execute strategic bomber operations This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible Therefore you will see the original copyright references library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work As a reproduction of a historical artifact this work may contain missing or blurred pages poor pictures errant marks etc Scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved reproduced and made generally available to the public We appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant Flying Blind Michael Edward Brown,1983
