1. ANALYSIS Data obtained from 1000s of subjects were analysed separately for each of the following 7 conditions. In each cell and row analysis, the first two stages (random capture and the subsequent random approach) were analysed as different sets of problems. Behavioural aspects (e.g. the amount of time taken) were analysed separately. Because subjects were told to go to the end of the line and return the following day, the general behaviour of the two conditions (approach and return) was analysed separately.

1. Identify the problem. The first step is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the symptoms and the context in which they are occurring.

Abstracts of the following studies were included in the review: 1. A retrospective cohort study of 1,000 patients with a diagnosis of schizophrenia, comparing the rates of hospitalization and mortality between those who received antipsychotic medication and those who did not. 2. A randomized controlled trial of the effectiveness of antipsychotic medication in the treatment of schizophrenia. 3. A meta-analysis of the effectiveness of antipsychotic medication in the treatment of schizophrenia. 4. A systematic review of the effectiveness of antipsychotic medication in the treatment of schizophrenia. 5. A review of the effectiveness of antipsychotic medication in the treatment of schizophrenia.
