Terminal Disaster Inside The Money Machine:

Terminal Disaster Randall Radic, Ralph Fontana, 2012-02-14 Every day millions of Americans stand at store checkout counters and make a decision After swiping their debit card they decide whether to punch in their 4 digit PIN or to sign their name Most of them don't give a hoot how the transaction is processed The price of their Starbucks double latte is the same either way Behind that trivial decision billions of dollars are at stake When you sign a debit card receipt at a large retailer the store pays your bank a fee If you punch in your PIN the store also pays a fee The difference is that when you sign a receipt the store pays your bank more than twice as much as when you use your PIN And that's not all The store pays other fees too Every time you swipe your card the merchant pays a processing fee a transaction charge and an interchange fee The interchange fee is approximately 2% to 3% of the total cost of the item or items purchased by the customer That fee the interchange fee goes to either Visa or MasterCard Visa and MasterCard make money each and every time a debit card is swiped anywhere in the world So does the bank that issued the debit card While merchants either eat the cost of the fee or raise their prices to cover it If the merchant chooses the latter raising the price the consumer ends up paying the fee This system benefits Visa MasterCard and the banks at the expense of merchants and or consumers Terminal Disaster is the story of how this system came into being from its origins after WW2 until present *Transcript of Proceedings of the National Railway Labor Panel Emergency Board.
