Manslaughter, Markets, and Moral Economy Thomas M. Buoye, 2006-11-02

In this book Thomas Buoye examines the impact of large scale economic change on social conflict in eighteenth century China. He draws upon a large body of actual documented homicide cases originating in property disputes to recreate the social tensions of rural China during the Qianlong reign 1736-1795. The development of property rights a process that had begun in the Ming dynasty was accompanied by other changes that fostered disruption and conflict including an explosion in the population growth and the increasing strain on land and resources and increasing commercialization in agriculture. Buoye challenges the markets and moral economy theories of economic behaviour. Applying the theories of Douglass North for the first time to this subject he uses an institutional framework to explain seemingly irrational economic choices. Buoye examines demographic and technological factors ideology and political and economic institutions in rural China to understand the link between economic and social change

Institutional Variety in East Asia Werner Pascha, Cornelia Storz, Markus Taube, 2011 This illuminating book broadly addresses the emerging field of diversity of Capitalism from a comparative institutional approach. It explores the varied patterns for achieving coordination in different economic systems applying them specifically to China Japan and South Korea. These countries are of particular interest due to the fact that they are often considered to have developed their own peculiar blend of models of capitalism. The expert contributors take a common institutional approach focusing on institutions at the macro level. They present case studies to demonstrate the diversity of institutional patterns at the advent of the 21st century both within the East Asian region and elsewhere. Examples of stability within existing institutions are illustrated alongside examples of comprehensive institutional change. Underpinning the case studies are a set of theoretical and empirical challenges for researchers concerned with national institutional settings path dependence and endogenous dynamics
