in politics Women's Access to Political Power in Post-Communist Europe Richard E. Matland, Kathleen A. Montgomery, 2003-05-01 This book considers women's access to formal positions of power in the newly formed democracies of post communist Europe. While acknowledging the relevance of recent history, this book takes an important step away from the communist legacy and explicitly argues for a framework based on causal variables identified in the existing literatures from industrialized democracies on women and politics and legislative recruitment. After a brief introduction, the second chapter sets forth a general theoretical framework which posits that the level of female legislative representation in a given country is a function of the relative supply of and demand for female candidates. After a chapter considering a broad overview of public opinion on women and politics in Eastern Europe, thirteen country chapters spanning the spectrum of Eastern European democracies address and test hypotheses about the key variables affecting the supply and demand sides of the equation in individual countries. Relevant aspects of the communist cultural and developmental legacy are addressed, but authors give particular attention to political factors such as electoral rules and the characteristics of the emerging party systems that vary within the Eastern European countries. The new democracies of Eastern Europe provide a novel context in which to test and extend our theories about the consequences of political institutions for the quality of democracy. Since institutional arrangements are more malleable than developmental or cultural characteristics, those variables also offer the greatest promise to scholars and practitioners wondering what can be done to improve women's access to formal arenas of political power. How can we build democracies that are stable, lasting, and representative? A careful analysis of the post communist context can help us to address issues concerning institutional design and development that has relevance well beyond the Eastern European context.

Gender, Institutions and Political Representation Cristina Chiva, 2017-11-21 This book traces the struggles over the institutions of political representation in Central and Eastern Europe, focusing on the factors that have held women back over the post communist period as well as on the growing evidence for change throughout the region. Post communist Europe has long raised two puzzles for scholars of women's representation in politics. First, why have women been underrepresented in politics in every country in the region since communism's collapse? Secondly, why are there relatively few cases where women's advocates have been successful in pressing for change? This comparative study of Europe's new democracies argues that these puzzles are best understood as questions about male dominance that is about the mechanisms that sustain or alternatively change long established patterns of male over representation in politics over time. The author covers six EU member states: Bulgaria, the Czech Republic, Hungary, Poland, Romania, and Slovakia during the period 1990-2016. The book will be of use to students and scholars in the fields of Comparative Politics, Democracy and Democratization, European Studies, Gender Studies, Post Communist Studies, and Central and Eastern European Studies.

Power Manon Tremblay, 2017-03-02 The representation of women in parliament is a subject of extensive research and a focus for political action in the last decade The wide variation in women s parliamentary presence contradicts the expectation that established or consolidated democracies are more supportive of the presence of women in political life than emerging democracies This volume explains this variation through a series of closely investigated case studies from the post Communist transition democracies of Eastern Europe and emerging democracies in Asia and the Middle East to the long established liberal democratic states The volume examines the history of women s legislative involvement clearly addressing the issue of equal opportunities for women in political life on a cross national basis It also identifies innovative solutions to redress the power sharing balance between women and men Offering a unique comparative perspective Sharing Power will appeal to students and scholars of politics women s studies history and legislative studies Defeating Authoritarian Leaders in Postcommunist Countries Valerie J. Bunce, Sharon L. Wolchik, 2011-06-30 From 1998 to 2005 six elections took place in postcommunist Europe that had the surprising outcome of empowering the opposition and defeating authoritarian incumbents or their designated successors Valerie J Bunce and Sharon L Wolchik compare these unexpected electoral breakthroughs They draw three conclusions First the opposition was victorious because of the hard and creative work of a transnational network composed of local opposition and civil society groups members of the international democracy assistance community and graduates of successful electoral challenges to authoritarian rule in other countries Second the remarkable run of these upset elections reflected the ability of this network to diffuse an ensemble of innovative electoral strategies across state boundaries Finally elections can serve as a powerful mechanism for democratic change This is especially the case when civil society is strong the transfer of political power is through constitutional means and opposition leaders win with small mandates The Journal of Parliamentary Information ,2010 New Books on Women, Gender and Feminism ,2010 New Books on Women and Feminism ,2011 Comparative Politics Christian Soe,2001-04 This reader of public press articles covers the current state of politics in Western Europe the United Kingdom Germany France Italy and Japan factors in the political process in modern pluralist democracies politics of intergration transformation and disintegration in Europe political diversity in Latin America Africa China India and newly industrialized countries and major trends issues and prospects Dushkin Online is a student Web site designed to support Annual Editions titles www.dushkin.com online Parliamentary Debates (Hansard).
