African Women

Catherine Coquery-vidrovitch, Beth Raps, 2018-10-08 Over the last century the social and economic roles played by African women have evolved dramatically Long confined to home and field overlooked by their menfolk and missionaries alike African women worked thought dreamed and struggled They migrated to the cities invented new jobs and activated the so called informal economy to become Africa s economic and social focal point As a result despite their lack of education and relatively low status women are now Africa s best hope for the future This sweeping and innovative book is the first to reconstruct the full history of women in sub Saharan Africa Tracing the lot of African women from the eve of the colonial period to the present Catherine Coquery Vidrovitch explores the stages and forms of women s collective roles as well as their individual emancipation through revolts urban migrations economic impacts social claims political strength and creativity Comparing case studies drawn from throughout the region she sheds light on issues ranging from gender to economy politics society and culture Utilizing an impressive array of sources she highlights broad general patterns without overlooking crucial local variations With its breadth of coverage and clear analysis of complex questions this book is destined to become a standard text for scholars and students alike

In Her Lifetime Committee to Study Female Morbidity and Mortality in

Sub-Saharan Africa, Institute of Medicine, 1996-03-20 The relative lack of information on determinants of disease disability and death at major stages of a woman s lifespan and the excess morbidity and premature mortality that this engenders has important adverse social and economic ramifications not only for Sub Saharan Africa but also for other regions of the world as well Women bear much of the weight of world production in both traditional and modern industries In Sub Saharan Africa for example women contribute approximately 60 to 80 percent of agricultural labor Worldwide it is estimated that women are the sole supporters in 18 to 30 percent of all families and that their financial contribution in the remainder of families is substantial and often crucial This book provides a solid documentary base that can be used to develop an agenda to guide research and health policy formulation on female health both for Sub Saharan Africa and for other regions of the developing world This book could also help facilitate ongoing collaboration between African researchers on women s health and their U S colleagues Chapters cover such topics as demographics nutritional status obstetric morbidity and mortality mental health problems and sexually transmitted diseases including HIV

Saulniers, Cathy A. Rakowski, 1977 Women and Education in Sub-Saharan Africa Marianne N. Bloch, Josephine A. Beoku-Betts, B. Robert Tabachnick, 1998-01-01 Based on a conference held at the University of Wisconsin Madison African Feminism Gwendolyn Mikell, 1997 This book is the best thing I've seen on the question not only of feminism in its African articulation but also more generally on the question of how feminism emerges and what it means to those who espouse it Joan Scott Institute for Advanced Study Princeton Women in Africa of the Sub-Sahara: The 20th century Marjorie Wall Bingham, Susan Hill Gross, Women in World Area Studies (Project), 1982 Examines the historical social and cultural roles of women in Sub Saharan Africa featuring South Africa and emphasizing the twentieth century Insights Into Gender Equity, Equality and Power Relations in Sub-saharan Africa Mansah Prah, 2013 Since gender entered the development discourse in the Seventies African countries have increasingly taken the concept on board in policy and practice This concern may be due to either one or a combination of the following factors the ideological positioning of African countries demands by their donors and development partners and demands by organised local groups and NGOs Gender in the development discourse ought to transform power relations between men and women and shift them to social relations that reflect their equal access to productive resources opportunities and social and material benefits The result of such actions should be an achievement of comparable status of women and men This volume initiated by OSSREA seeks to examine in more depth issues regarding the gender power imbalance in sub Saharan African countries with a specific focus on the eastern and southern African regions The chapters in this book present research that examines and analyses the effectiveness and efficiency of gender mainstreaming policies strategies and projects developed and implemented by national and international actors The themes inter weave with each other although they address gender issues in specific countries and specific contexts This can be explained by the shared colonial and post colonial heritage of African countries It is useful therefore to view the structure of the book as a spiral of inter connected issues that address similar themes approaching them from different levels Purely for ease of reading the contributions have been organised into three parts with over arching themes that at first glance may seem not to fit well together A theme that runs through all the chapters is the persistence of patriarchal values and attitudes in Africa and its constraining effect on the achievement of gender equity and equality

Women and Law in Sub-Saharan Africa Cynthia Grant Bowman, Akua Kuenyehia, 2003 Examines legal problems that affect the status of women in Sub Saharan Africa Includes a collection of cases and statutes from various African nations Presents commentaries by African authors The Paradox of Gender Equality and Economic Outcomes in Sub-Saharan Africa Evelyn F. Wamboye, 2023-10-05 This Element provides an in depth analysis of the role of women's ownership of and access to land in sub Saharan Africa SSA in determining gender equality and women's economic and social outcomes and gives suggestions to inform effective gender sensitive land policies Using cross sectional regression analysis we find that ownership of land by women positively contributes to women's absolute employment Conversely results from pairwise correlation show that a lack of ownership of land by women is highly correlated with increased women's unemployment. Despite these findings, the proportion of women who own land in SSA is lower than that of men. Moreover, women usually acquire land through either purchase from the market system or marriage, and even then their rights of ownership are usually very limited and precarious compared to the rights of men. Gender, Literacy, and Life Chances in Sub-Saharan Africa Benedicta Egbo, 2000-01-01. Taking as a starting point the taken-for-granted assumption that literacy affects women's lives in very important ways, the author provides much needed evidence from research in a rural community in Sub-Saharan Africa that shows the value of literacy in increasing the life chances of women. The book concludes with macro and micro level policy options that are necessary for critical reconstruction of women's lives in the region and elsewhere.
