Tomlin, 2015-11-02 Stimulate neurologically impaired clients executive functioning with activities that use relevant content themed around home activities and home maintenance Written in the best selling format of the WALC series Executive Functioning includes reproducible exercises and activities that can be used in individual or group situations Many of the tasks involve working memory which taps into the client's general knowledge base and encourages the client to ask others for help or to use whatever is available to gain the information they need to answer a question accurately Most of the tasks provide answers for the client to choose from which stimulates two specific thinking processes First it causes the client to evaluate all of the choices to determine whether the provided items fit the question giving the client practice with self analyzing and selection based on fact and appropriateness Second as these exercises were not developed for word finding or memory for general information improvement the client won't be penalized if he has those deficits along with executive thinking deficits Many of the items have multiple appropriate answers which gives the client practice with thought flexibility Many of the exercises have already been answered and the client must analyze whether the selected response was accurate This provides practice with meta cognitive skills for identifying analyzing and planning Several exercises have no right or wrong answers as the responses will be based on the client's subjective opinions and preferences Many of the tasks will assist the client in developing decision making skills based on fact as opposed to unverified opinions Asha American recommended for students in grades K 2 has been aimed at providing a wide variety of fun and analytical thinking questions that can significantly improve a child's ability to think about problems. It is no longer an age of just mechanical thinking and applying a few memorized techniques. The ability to reflect clearly and to reason are equally important as the ability to read or to write and these cognitive abilities are not exclusively taught in school. It is very important to develop visual discrimination, abstract thinking abilities, verbal reasoning, and critical thinking skills essential in all areas of education. The notes in the answer key are a great resource to ensure that enriched discussion is continued and correlations are made.
