To address misconceptions: Ask your students to be math-detectives. Say, "I am going to solve the problem but I'm going to do something wrong. See if you can catch the mistake I make." Model solving the problem making a deliberate error that will call attention to misconceptions. Have students explain the mistake and state why it is wrong.

Elaboration: Tell students, "Now we are going to practice writing and solving subtraction sentences." Give each child a response worksheet on pg. 7. If you laminate the worksheets or put them in a sheet protector this will allow students to use them over and over with a dry-erase marker. If you choose to do this, you may want to use this as a center after the lesson. Give each child 5 bear numbers and 5 lion numbers. Have each child choose 1 bear number and 1 lion number and use those numbers to write and solve a subtraction sentence. To correctly complete this activity students will need to understand that the larger number needs to come first in a subtraction sentence.

For more advanced students: I've provided bear number cards for the numbers 21 - 29. Give your more advanced students these bear cards and have them solve subtraction problems.

For students in need of more support: I've provided lion number cards for the numbers 21 - 29. Give your students in need of more support these lion cards and have them solve subtraction problems.

Evaluation: Students will solve the subtraction problems on pg. 8.
