Anti Anxiety Diet Olivia Johnson Smith, 2020-08-24 ANTI ANXIETY DIET Black And White Paperback Version

Anxiety is a common disorder that affects many people. Treatments vary from medication and coping mechanisms to diet and exercise but what actually works best? Which foods and dietary habits cause anxiety? Which foods treat and reduce anxiety? This book provides an in depth look at how the brain and body function under stress, how events and stress impact anxiety and why eating well balanced whole foods full of nutrients is key to the prevention and treatment of anxiety. What foods help treat anxiety while reducing stress? How simple is it to change food options and the significant improvements these changes make in your brain's health, cognitive processes and functions? The basic science behind anxiety, stress, the basics of neurotransmitters and how diet can improve chemical balance in the brain. How gut health and balancing your body's natural microbiome is essential to your brain's health and the connection. This book includes practical guides for creating shopping lists including nutrients, avoiding deficiencies and creating weekly meal plans to keep you on track to a better way of eating and living. The complex systems of the brain and body are explained with their various connections to different vitamins, minerals and naturally occurring chemicals that we can obtain through our everyday meals as a form of medicine. Healing the body with proper nutrition also provides other benefits and goals: Stronger cognitive ability and improved brain function, Prevention of brain related diseases, Improvement of digestion, weight loss and increasing your metabolism, Reduced stress, elevation of mood and warding off depression. The Power Of Natural Remedies Martar Media, 2020-01-23 Weight loss seems to be on everyone's mind Whether it's on magazine covers, newspapers or on your social media feed people want to know how to lose weight Are there any remedies which can boost weight loss According to a poll conducted by Gallup just over 50% of Americans want to lose weight Maybe that's why losing weight is one of the top 5 New Year's resolutions each and every year It's not surprising because it's estimated that 1 in 3 Americans is obese And studies have found that a person at their ideal weight is seen by others as more successful attractive and healthier than people who are overweight Yet the same poll found that only half of the respondents reported that they were actively trying to lose weight It seems that the desire for weight loss is there but the execution isn't And it isn't difficult to understand why Weight gain can be due to emotional or physical issues which must be dealt with or making a change will be difficult or unsustainable It's also a slow discouraging process And there's so much information available on the topic and so much of it contradictory that getting started becomes overwhelming That's why people are drawn to solutions which can help make weight loss easier and faster Weight loss programs offer support and there are numerous low calorie foods which cater to specific diet plans such as keto paleo or plant based Eventually dieters look into the availability of safe natural solutions to losing weight Their popularity is driven by their relatively low price and because of the belief that they have fewer side effects than their prescription drug counterparts But do these natural remedies really work Let's take a look at three natural remedies which have shown promise in the challenge to lose weight Green TeaPeople around the world drink green tea as a beverage but studies have found that this tea offers many healthy benefits and one of them maybe to speed weight loss A study at Penn State discovered that the polyphenols in green tea limit the body's ability to absorb fat and increase the body's ability to use the fat it does absorb And a 2nd study at Penn found that green tea and exercise helped in boosting weight loss in mice That's why green tea has become such a popular weight loss supplement and is featured on talk shows like Dr Oz and in magazines Drinking 3-4 cups of green tea daily can help support your weight loss program If you prefer taking a supplement there are several on the market Make sure you buy from a manufacturer which has received a good rating from a third party lab Cayenne PepperSeveral studies have been conducted to look into the medicinal uses of the compounds found in cayenne pepper One study from 2012 discovered that the capsaicinoids in the peppers increased metabolism reduced appetite and stimulates digestion Cayenne pepper can be added to food or drinks in fact adding it to green tea will increase its already powerful benefits or mixing 1/10th of a teaspoon along with one tablespoon of lemon juice into 10 ounces of water Apple Cider VinegarConsuming apple cider vinegar appears to help some people lose weight Raw unfiltered apple cider vinegar seems to work best and detoxes the body allowing water weight to be flushed from the body Advocates of this natural remedy say that it helps melt fat but no studies have been conducted on these claims The recommended serving is 2 to 4 tablespoons which can be added to foods such as vegetables or salads or ingested in water Additionally there are reports that coffee bean extract cinnamon cardamom fennel ginger mustard and turmeric all have metabolism boosting properties Losing weight safely takes time and it's unrealistic to expect quick results However these natural remedies are worth investigating because they may just give you the extra boost you need to stay
