The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne William John Locke,2015-06-12 Excerpt from The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne A Novel For reasons which will be given later I sit down here in Verona to write the history of my extravagant adventure I shall formulate and expand the rough notes in my diary which lies open before me and I shall begin with a happy afternoon in May six months ago May 20th London To day is the seventh anniversary of my release from captivity I will note it every year in my diary with a sigh of unutterable thanksgiving For seven long blessed years have I been free from the degrading influences of Jones Minor and the First Book of Euclid Some men find the modern English boy stimulating and the old Egyptian humorous Such are the born school masters and schoolmasters like poets nascuntur non fiunt What I was born passes my ingenuity to fathom Certainly not a schoolmaster and my many years of apprenticeship did not make me one They only turned me into an automaton feared by myself bantered by my colleagues and sometimes good humouredly tolerated by the boys Seven years ago the lawyer s letter came The post used to arrive just before first school About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
