Concern about the aging population tends to focus on the adequacy of Medicare and Social Security, retirement of older Americans and the need to identify policies programs and strategies that address the health and safety needs of older workers. Older workers differ from their younger counterparts in a variety of physical, psychological and social factors. Evaluating the extent causes and effects of these factors and improving the research and data systems necessary to address the health and safety needs of older workers may significantly impact both their ability to remain in the workforce and their well being in retirement. Health and Safety Needs of Older Workers provides an image of what is currently known about the health and safety needs of older workers and the research needed to encourage social policies that guarantee older workers a meaningful share of the nation's work opportunities Occupational and Environmental Health Barry S. Levy, 2006 This thoroughly updated Fifth Edition is a comprehensive practical guide to recognizing, preventing and treating work related and environmentally induced injuries and diseases. Chapters by experts in medicine, industry, labor, government, safety, ergonomics, environmental health and psychology address the full range of clinical and public health concerns. Numerous case studies, photographs, drawings, graphs and tables help readers understand key concepts. This edition features new chapters on environmental health including water pollution, hazardous waste, global environmental hazards, the role of nongovernmental organizations in environmental health and responding to community environmental health concerns.
