★ Our Planet, One Planet (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GR0-3Qir-qM>) 50 minutes

- ★ Just 50 years ago, we ventured to the moon-> since then, the human population has more than doubled
- ★ When human beings built their first settlements, about 10,000 years ago, the land around them & the sea was full of life
- ★ For generation, this stable Eden nurtured our growing civilizations
- ★ Now in the span of one human lifetime, that has changed
- ★ In the last 50 years, wildlife populations have declined by 60%
- ★ The natural world is resilient, great riches still remain & with our help, the planet can recover
- ★ Wildlife still flourishes in astonishing numbers in a few precious species
 - Peruvian coast of south America has millions of colonies of birds who come to breed
 - 5 million birds go through daily migration
 - Flocks of cormorants & boobies eat anchovies which are abundant in the water
 - Birds eat in a "feeding frenzy"
 - The Humboldt, powerful oceanic current, sweeps up from the Antarctic and brings nutrients from the ocean's depth
 - 90% of the ocean's life, is found in the shallow seas close to the coast
 - Away from land, seas are like "blue desert"
- ★ Winds sweep up 2 billion tons of dust into sky per year
 - ¼ falls into ocean and provides nutrients for microscopic organisms
 - Krill, small crustaceans that feed on ocean's microscopic plants
 - Dolphins eat mackerel which eat krill
 - Birds attack top of shoal and dolphins attack underside
- ★ Water evaporates from surface of sea, condense into clouds, and release as rain
- ★ Salt pan in Africa remains after ancient lake & is extremely hostile for life
 - Huge deluge drenches salt pan which triggers flocks of flamingos to arrive
 - Triggered by some unknown signal, flocks arrive from thousands of kilometers away
 - The algae which flamingos feed on lay dormant in dust as spores
 - Flamingos mainly arrive to breed
 - Perfect conditions may only occur once in a decade
 - Birds nest on an island far from the shore
 - Eggs are placed in mounds of mud to keep them cooler
 - Nests are safe because water is so salty, predators do not venture into it
